PREFACE.

This third volume of "Researches into Chinese Superstitions" deals with the form, mode of writing, and explanation of charms and spells. Completing as it does the doctrine and popular notions contained in the two preceding volumes, it finds its natural and logical place here. In the French series, the Author published it as Volume V. This was owing to the difficulty he experienced in elucidating the abstruse principles, the mythical and phantastic inventions, the medley of Taoist and Buddhist philosophy which form the basis of charm writing. Taoism has influenced Confucianism. Kw'ei-sing 魁星, the God of Literature, and as such worshipped by all students, is of Taoist origin. In pictures of him, he is represented as a demon-like personage, standing on one leg, and with the other kicking the Dipper, which is regarded as his palace. He holds in one hand an immense pencil, and in the other a cap for graduates (1). A small temple is erected to him on the Eastern side of the entrance to all Confucian temples. Buddhism has largely borrowed from Taoism both gods and charms. Wang Ling-kwan 王靈官, one of the twenty-six Commanders of the Celestial Army, a fanciful invention of Taoism, is adopted by the disciples of Sakyamuni, and assigned a place among the guardians of their temples (2). He carries a wand in his hand, symbol of his power for expelling demons. His birth-day is celebrated on the 24th of the sixth month (July). Taoists in turn have not failed to borrow from Buddhists the doctrine of wandering souls and the metempsychosis (3). To discriminate between what belongs properly to each religion and set it forth with lucidity and brevity required much care and labour. Few writers before the Author had delved scientifically and methodically into these subjects, and so the results he has achieved are all the more wonderful, and will appeal powerfully to students of comparative religion.

In the preface to Vol. II., the nature, efficacy and widespread use of charms, have been amply set forth, and so we will here but refer the reader thereto. The object of the present volume is chiefly to explain the component parts of the charm, its make-up, its form, its quaint and mysterious writing, how its efficacy is increased, and finally to thoroughly interpret its doctrine and significance, the gods and superhuman powers it sets to work for restraining evil spirits, curing diseases (1), and promoting, as the Chinese understand it, human happiness in the present life and the next.

Ancient and modern characters denoting charms and spells. — The earliest word employed by the Chinese for denoting a charm or spell is Chuh 祝 (2), which means to implore, invoke spirits, supplicate the gods for blessings, hence prayer combined with some exorcising formula summoning the gods to come to the assistance of man. In this sense, it is found in the Chow-li 周禮 (3), Li-ki 禮記 (4), and Shu-king 書經 (5), the three most ancient

(1) Demons and spectres perform in the world the leading part in the distribution of evil. They visit man with disease, cause plagues and epidemics, produce poisonous breaths and influences, working at times in connection with the vicissitudes of the seasons. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. V, p. 705 (Demonism in Pathology) — The ancient British Druids attempted to cure the generality of diseases by charms and incantations. Dennys. The Folk-lore of China p. 45.

(2) This character is composed of the radical 示 (Shi) worship, joined to mouth and man, thus meaning to beg, to implore the gods by words. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

(3) Chow Ritual. Written in the early part of the Chow dynasty (B.C. 1122), it consists of an elaborate detail of the various officers under that dynasty with their respective duties. Wylie. Notes on Chinese Literature. p. 4.

(4) Record of Rites. A book of very early origin and by some attributed to Chow Kung 周公, brother of Wu Wang 武王, founder of the Chow dynasty. The doctrine contained in it has given rise to several schools of exposition and teaching. Wylie. ibid. p. 6.

(5) Book of History. Compiled by Confucius from the historical records of the earliest dynasties. The original contained 100 chapters, but the present-day edition has but 58. Wylie. ibid. p. 3.

Classics of China. Under the Han 漢 dynasty (B.C. 206—A.D. 25), the word was written 呪 or 說, the radical 口 (K'eu, mouth) or 言 (Yen, words) taking the place of 示 (Shi, religious objects and matters), and the above two forms 呪 or 說 (pronounced Chow, to curse, imprecate, recite spells) have remained down to the present day the graphic sign for charm or spell.

In the works of Mencius (B.C. 372-289), the character 符 (Fu, bamboo slips made to tally with a corresponding part) occurs and denotes a charm of any form on wood, metal, linen or paper, written or engraved. Frequently, written charms are called Luh 籙 (1). Later writers have finally combined the two words, and thus we have Fu-luh 符籙 (2), an expression meaning all kinds of magic script for expelling demons, curing diseases and conferring happiness on man (3).

Principal parts of a charm, its form and make-up. — Two things may be considered in a charm, its official character and the divers manners in which the document is drawn up. A charm is an official document, a mandate, an injunction, emanating from a god and setting to work superhuman powers who carry out the orders of the divinity. The Chinese world of spectres is modelled after the administrative system of the country. As there are higher and low officials, so there are also higher and lower gods. The former command, give orders and injunctions, and the latter carry out the commands of their superiors. A charm, therefore, generally begins by the word Ch'ih 勅, to order or command. The term Ch'ih-kwei 勅鬼, to command spectres, occurs in Chinese literature ever since the Han 漢 dynasty (B.C. 206 — A.D. 25), as a standard

(1) This character is composed of the radical Chuh 竹 (bamboo) and the phonetic Luh 錄 (to transcribe, to record).

(2) Williams translates this expression "a magic writing" (Dictionary of the Chinese Language), and Giles "books on magic" (Chinese-English Dictionary). See Vol. II. Ch. VI. p. 157, where this title is employed by the Author.

(3) De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1035 (Charms and spells in early times).

expression for exorcism. No other character appears in written charms with more frequency. Sometimes we find at the head of a charm the expression Cheng-chi 正治, orderly conduct and behaviour. Cheng 正 denotes the rectitude of the Tao 道, or universal Order, this character impressing on spectres a behaviour in accordance with that Order. Other expressions are Ling 令 and Ming 命, to command; Chen 鎮, to repress, to reduce to subjection. All these are powerful exorcising characters.

Charms conferring felicity, longevity and peace, have these characters generally at the top, though at times they may be disguised under fantastic or cabalistic forms (1).

In charms which embody the divinity, a rough sketch of the god is depicted at the top (2). He is even sometimes represented sitting on his throne, surrounded by his ministers and subordinates.

In the body of the charm are found the expressions: Lai 來 (come), Kiang 降 (descend), Sheng 升 (rise, ascend) K'ü 去 (depart, go away). In those for the destruction of spectres, we find "kill, murder, kill with the sword".

To operate with tremendous effect, the charm or spell must denote thunder or lightning. This is represented by a spiral, which issues a flash. An increase of effect is obtained by writing two flashes. Thunder and lightning charms are intended to smite spectres, and form an essential part of the magic of the Taoist religion. All nature is influenced by these thunder-gods, of whom a great variety have been invented by Taoists. Not less powerful and frequent in charms are Jeh 日 the sun, Yueh 月 the moon, often combined into

(1) Symbolical representations of felicity are extensively used in China. Thus dragons producing rain and fertility, stags bestowing old age, ducks and phœnixes promoting conjugal fidelity and love, cranes which lengthen life and give happiness, tortoises which endow man with longevity, and bats furthering his felicity. Furthermore, unicorns bless man with sage and excellent rulers; coins and pears produce wealth and pecuniary profits; rice, peas and wheat secure numerous offspring. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1032 (Symbols of felicity).

(2) See Vol. II. p. 161. figure 66 (Exorcising charm of marvellous efficacy).

Ming 明 light (1). Stellar gods, and the constellations in which they are located, are represented by black spots or dots linked together in groups or clusters. Thus we have the 4 stars in the bowl of the Dipper, the 6 stars in the constellation of the South Pole, the 7 in that of the Great Bear, the 36 stars in the Dipper, the 72 maleficent stars that injure man, and cause diseases and epidemics.

The evil to be destroyed is generally placed at the end, and represented by various characters, such as Hsiung 凶, Tsai 災, Hwo 禍, Sui 祟 and Fei 非, all meaning misfortune, calamity or ill-luck.

The charm being an official document, as stated above, terminates much in the same manner as Chinese Imperial edicts: "let the law be obeyed, let this order be respected and executed forthwith". Taoists sometimes end their charms by the expressions "quick, quick", or "quick as fire" "Hwo-kih" 火急, denoting thereby that the destruction of spectres should be brought about with lightning velocity.

How the efficacy of charms is increased. — The effect of a charm, as well as that of any other decree or command, depends principally on the power of him who has issued it. Hence the names or images of gods, Shen 神, those of deified men (2), Commanders of the Celestial Army, Taoist genii and famous wizards (3), placed at the head of charms, impart to them increased efficacy. Even rough drawings or fragmentary parts of the god, the head, arms or legs, would produce a similar effect. Charms may, however, harbour spiritual power, though no names of gods are found on them, provided they contain or have written on them the characters Shen 神, Ling 靈, both meaning spiritual; or Hsiao 囂, to vociferate with many mouths, to revile (4). The exorcising power of charms is also won-

(1) The sun, moon and stars are Shen 神 or gods, and hence universal devil-destroying powers. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1043 (The War against spectres).

(2) Huang-ti 皇帝, Lao-tze 老子, Buddha or Fuh 佛, etc.

(3) Chang Tao-ling 張道陵, Chung-lwei 鍾馗 (a charm-god of great power). See Vol. III. p. 261.

(4) The Chinese believe that wherever human beings crowd together, their souls represent a considerable amount of Yang 陽 or Shen 神 substance, which intimidates spectres, especially if the crowd enhances its dangerous aspect by unfriendly cries. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1045.

derfully increased when the god signs his name (1) at the end of the mandate, or pledges his word that his orders will be punctually executed. Charms that mention thunder-gods operate with more tremendous effect than others. Such gods exert great influence over Nature, and are especially powerful in smiting spectres.

Imperial orders in China are issued under seal, written on yellow paper, and marked with a cinnabar or carnation pencil. Taoists have cunningly imitated these dispositions, and issue their charms under the seal of the Supreme Lao-kūn, T'ai-shang Lao-kūn 太上老君, or that of Chang Tao-ling 張道陵. They likewise print them on yellow or Imperial paper, and mark them with a pencil obtained if possible from a mandarin's desk (2). Charm-writers, while doing their work, may also vigorously concentrate their attention upon some mighty divinity, preferably upon a thunder-god, and thus together with their own intelligence or soul instil the magic power of the god into the charm. They may, moreover, blow on the pencil while writing the charm (3), or pronounce vigorous spells over it, thus increasing its power. Such and other various silly devices are found to-day throughout the length and breadth of the land, and practised by both Taoists and Buddhists, who thus exploit the ignorance and vain fears of a too credulous people.

Charm-writing—Is it divine? — The charm is a divine mandate, written in special script, and setting to work superhuman powers for the benefit, protection and welfare of man. Its interpretation, therefore, must extend to a twofold element, the writing in which it is drawn up, and the meaning of this mystic script. Taoists maintain that this quaint writing is of a high order, a special gift of the gods, and give it the pretentious names of "celestial writing",

(1) See Vol. III. p. 273, 297, 319, where each charm is signed by the god.

(2) The acme of efficacy is reached if the charms are written with a genuine cinnabar pencil obtained from a mandarin's desk. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1048.

(3) See Vol. III. p. 310, where the charm-writer blows on the pen, saying: "this is the true breath of Buddha himself".

T'ien-shu 天書, and “thunder seal-script” Lei-chwen 雷篆 (1). Such a claim is utterly preposterous. We may, however, admit that charms having been invented and drawn up by deified emperors, ancient worthies, cunning wizards and magicians, famous exorcists, and the high prophets of Taoism and Buddhism, the untutored mass see in them something divine and mysterious (2). As a rule, charms are very illegible. This is owing to the fact that they are sometimes drawn up in archaic writing, the knowledge of which is confined to a very few in China. Conventional forms and symbols are also used, and these, none but professional charm-writers know. Even ordinary characters are arbitrarily abbreviated, mutilated, and fanciful additions made thereto in the shape of strokes or dots, thus rendering their reading perplexing to nine-tenths at least of the Chinese people. Current handwriting, so arbitrary in China, is another obstacle to many readers, even to the literati themselves. The origin of a superstitious practice is not unfrequently based on a pun upon the word, which few Chinese can detect unless explained to them. Thus “Fuh” 蝠 a bat, is employed for happiness, felicity, good luck, both being similarly pronounced (3). All these reasons have ever made charm-writing a puzzle for the generality of Chinese readers.

Explanation of charms. — If charm-writing is a puzzle to many, its ready explanation and analysis are, as a rule, still more difficult work. The charm is, in fact, the quintessence of Taoist and Buddhist lore, esoteric mysticism and practices, based on ancient cosmic notions, largely Confucian, and handed down by books and traditions. All practical and popular Taoism is summed up in charms. Hence to interpret them scientifically, one must have a thorough knowledge of the “Three Religions of China”, their variations and mutual borrowings one from the other. The whole scheme of Chinese philosophy, Chinese cosmic notions, the supposed influence of astrology over the life of man, much of venerable antiquity is embodied in the charm. The Chinaman's idea of happiness and misfortune, his conception of the spiritual world, how it is governed and administered, the hierarchy of the gods, there being higher and lower ones, as with the Greeks and Romans, the relations between man and these superhuman powers, all these constitute a most abstruse factor, which enters into the make-up of the charm. Moreover, to discriminate and set forth the names and functions of the various gods, genii, mythical and legendary beings, imposed on the Author an immense amount of research and labour, which now that the work is accomplished, fills us with amazement and deserves in the eyes of the intelligent Reader unbounded praise.

The method adopted in explaining all charms found in this volume may be summed up as follows: 1° a literal explanation of terms is given for each charm. The Chinese characters, some of which are drawn up in ancient and fanciful script, have been fully written out in modern form, and their meaning indicated with brevity and clearness. The names of gods and genii, mythical and legendary personages are sketched in a few words. Symbolical elements, allusions (1) and fabulous animals (2), have been also set forth and accompanied with explanatory notes, which, it is hoped, will prove helpful to the general Reader. 2° after explaining each term, the meaning of the charm is appended in full, so as to enable the Reader to grasp thoroughly its purpose, the superhuman powers it sets to work, and the results it proposes to attain.

Each charm is preceded by a number referring the Reader to the 1st or 11nd volume of this work, where the document is printed in full and in coloured paper.

Like the two preceding volumes, this 111rd one will enable the Reader to penetrate more and more the intricate psychology of the Chinese religious soul. Religion in China is not an effort to apprehend the Infinite, love and enjoy it; it is not man's nature clamouring for food necessary for life and perfection; nor is it a duty to serve the deity directly. So far as these three volumes impress us, it yokes rather the spiritual world, the superhuman element in which man believes, to the needs and welfare of humanity. To the Confucianist, man and his present life are the centre of all attention. In the eyes of the Taoist and the Buddhist, the world beyond, so far as realized—Isles of the Genii or Western Paradise—exists principally for man's sake. Man having made his gods, has rendered them subservient to all his needs and purposes. Such a system, utilitarian and selfish, utterly degrades the moral character of the deity as conceived by all nations, and offers to man but a delusive and beggarly happiness here and hereafter.

PRINCIPAL ELEMENTS

COSMIC, MYTHOLOGICAL, AND SYMBOLICAL

EMPLOYED IN CHINESE CHARMS.

I. Exorcising terms.

Chen 戰, to fight, to war, to battle.

Chen 鎮, to hold in subjection, reduce to obedience, to repress, keep in order.

Chi 治, Chi 制, to rule, to govern, to restrain.

Ch'ih 勅, to command, to order, a special command of the Emperor (1).

Ch'ih-kwei 勅鬼, to command spectres.

Ch'u 除, to remove (v.g. a disease or its causes), to root out, to eject.

Fuh 伏, and Fuh 服, to subdue, to subject, to repress.

Fuh 祓, to remove evil, to avert sickness, to disperse or drive away.

Hoh 劾, to accuse or impeach, to restrain.

Jang 攘, to drive off, to expel, as by incantations (2).

Kiai 解, to dispel, to do away with the effects of, to release, as from bonds.

K'ien 遣, to drive away, to expel, to remove.

Kin 禁, to frustrate, to restrain, to keep off, to prohibit.

K'ü 去, or 祛, to drive away, to expel, as noxious influences.

K'ü 驅, to expel, to drive off, to lash or whip.

(1) Ch'ih-ling-fu 勅令符, a charm containing "special orders" of a god.

(2) Written with the radical 示 (Shi' thus 禳, it means to fast and pray as Taoists do, in order to avert calamity, to deprecate evil. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

P'ih 辟, to repress, to punish, to exorcise.

San 散, to disperse, to scatter, to break up.

Sung 送, to send away.

Yen 厭, to suppress or repress, to subdue.

Yen-sheng 厭勝, to subdue, to conquer (1).

Yü 禦, to prevent, to resist, to repulse.

All the above terms may be followed by words denoting spectres or their influences, and the evils which they cause.

(1) This expression also means sorcery, if the power exerted on the spectres is used for evil ends.

II. Terms signifying happiness, felicity, evil or misfortune.

Fuh 福, happiness, blessing, good fortune, the felicity which attends divine protection (1).

Wu-fuh 五福, the five blessings. The Chinese enumerate the following five blessings: a long life, riches, health, honours and a peaceful end (2).

Kih 吉, good luck, good chance (3).

T'ai-p'ing 太平, undisturbed tranquillity, perpetual peace (4).

Ngan 安, peace, calm, quiet.

The evil to be destroyed is expressed by the following characters :

Hsiung 凶, misfortune, calamity, bad luck. The opposite of Kih 吉.

Tsai 災, misfortune that comes from above, adversity (5).

Hwo 禍, evil, misery, which men bring on themselves. The opposite of Fuh 福.

Sui 祟, calamities sent from heaven, which men cannot prevent.

Fei 非, evil, as opposed to good.

Sieh 邪, abnormal influences. The opposite of Cheng 正, correct, or orderly conduct.

(1) This character is written on embroidery, scrolls, crockery and all sorts of objects, in view of securing good fortune and happiness.

(2) See Vol. II. p. 218. note 1. — Vol. III. p. 265. note 2.

(3) K'ai-chang ta-kih 開張大吉, let great prosperity attend your re-opening. is a phrase found over shop-doors at new year.

(4) See charm conferring peace and tranquillity. Vol. II. p. 221.

(5) See Vol. III. p. 262, 283.

III. Cosmic and mythological elements numerically arranged.

The above circle denotes the heavens, and sometimes the sun's disc.

The above symbol denotes the earth.

○ ○ ○—○ ○—○ ○

The first dual combination denotes the sun and moon—the second, the Genii of harmony and concord, Hwo-hoh 和合—the third, the Yang 陽 and Yin 陰 principles, or the two Great Powers of Nature; sometimes also heaven and earth.

(2) The sun, moon, and the 7 stars in the constellation of the Great Bear.

(3) See Vol. I. p. 142, note 1.

(4) The 4 cardinal points, the 4 intermediate ones, to which are added "above and below".

(5) Yama, the Indian Pluto, with his 9 attendants, who preside over the state of the dead.

(6) Combined with the 10 heavenly stems, they form the cycle of 60, employed by the Chinese from a period of remote antiquity for the purpose of designating years

(7) These are the rat, ox, tiger, hare, dragon, serpent, horse, sheep, monkey, cock, dog and pig.

or horary genii, Shih-eul yuen-kiah 十二元甲—The Twelve great heavenly teachers, Shih-eul ta-t'ien-shi 十二大天師—The Twelve divisions of the ecliptic, Shih-eul kung-ch'ên 十二宮辰 (1).

18

The Eighteen Arhats, or Arhans, Shih-pah Lo-han 十八羅漢 (2).

28

The Twenty-eight constellations, or stellar mansions, Eul-shih-pah-suh 二十八宿. These constellations do not all correspond with our signs of the zodiac, nor are they all included within 23° North or South of the ecliptic. They are interpreted as signifying the "resting-places" of the sun and moon in their revolutions (Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual. p. 358).

36

The Thirty-six auspicious stellar gods, known as T'ien-kang 天罡 (3). They are represented by 9 dots, arranged in a series of 4 groups.

72

The Seventy-two malignant stellar gods, called Ti-shah 地煞, enemies of man, and causes of all diseases and ailments.

(1) These divisions, or mansions, mark the 12 places in which the sun and moon come into conjunction, and are thus in some degree analogous to our signs of the zodiac. Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual. p. 351.

(2) The immediate great disciples of Sakyamuni. In Chinese, they are designated as Tsun-cheh 尊者, worthies, venerable disciples. In large temples their images are placed in attendance upon those of Buddha.

(3) Buddhists place these gods in the constellation of the Great Bear. The 4, however, that form the bowl of the Dipper, are specially called the T'ien-kang 天罡. See Vol. III. p. 253, 285, 292.

IV. Symbolical and fabulous animals.

1. The golden-winged roc, or "ruk", Kin-p'eng-niao 金鵬鳥. This bird is sacred to Sakyamuni, who borrowed it from Vishnu. A picture of it is frequently found on Buddhist charms. It is said to ward off all evil influences that cause diseases (1).

2. The Ngao 鼈, or Kraken. A huge sea-monster, allied to the turtle, and said to have rescued Kw'ei-sing 魁星 from the watery depths. Taoist lore ascribes to it the function of bearing up the earth, and also states that it carried away the mountains of the genii into the Eastern sea (2). Shi Hwang-ti 始皇帝 (B.C. 246-209), who was an ardent Taoist, went to Chefoo 芝罘, in the hope of seeing this blissful Fairy-land, but failed (3).

3. The Lion, Shi-tze 獅子. The lion is the emblem of Buddha, one of his titles being "Sakyasinha", the "Lion of the Sakya tribe". In his repeated births, he was born 10 times as a lion, 6 as an elephant, once as a hare, but never as a woman, an insect or a "Preta" (4).

4. The Black Tiger, Heh-hu 黑虎. The "god of wealth", Ts'ai-shen 財神, is represented riding on a black tiger, hence a certain charm, reputed for securing an increase of wealth, is called the "black-tiger charm" (5).

(1) See Vol. III. p. 268.

(2) See Vol. III. p. 253. note 1.

(3) China Review. Vol. I. p. 216 (Taoism).

(4) See Vol. III. p. 308. note 2.

(5) See Vol. III. p. 318.

V. Puns, the origin of some charms.

The origin of a superstitious practice or allusion is not unfrequently based on a pun, or an erroneous pronunciation of a word peculiar to a locality. Thus the natives of Kiangsu 江蘇, and other Chinese provinces, constantly confuse the “spirant” f with the “aspirate” h (1). This has caused such words as “Hu” and “Fu” to be similarly pronounced, and hence employed the one for the other, as the Reader will see in the following examples.

Hu 壺, a pot, a jug, is pronounced Fu 符, a spell or charm. Hence the figure of a pot denotes a charm (2). In places, where “Hu” is not pronounced “Fu”, the pun is still maintained by confusing it with another Hu 護, to protect, to guard.

Hu 蝴, a butterfly, is likewise pronounced Fu 符, a spell or charm. Hence the figure of a butterfly denotes a spell or charm for preventing evil (3).

Fuh 蝠, a bat, is frequently used as an emblem of happiness, because this word is pronounced exactly like Fuh 福, felicity, good fortune, prosperity (4).

Wen 文, literature, being similarly pronounced as Wen 聞, to hear, denotes by allusion the “god of thunder”, the Great Master who hears, Wen T'ai-shi 聞太師 (5).

(1) The sound denoted by h is a strong expulsion of breath, hence called “spiritus asper”, rough breath or “aspirate”. The “spirant” is a less strong breath than the “aspirate. Papillon. Comparative Philology, Oxford (classification of sounds. p. 34).

(2) See Vol. III. p. 256.

(3) See Vol. III. p. 318.

(4) The bat is frequently drawn as the emblem of happiness, from the similarity of sound of the two words. Five bats denote the 5 blessings or felicities. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

(5) See Vol. III. p. 297.

VI. Elemental and stellar gods

The departed soul, spectres.

1° Thunder, thunder-gods, or the "Ministry of the thunderbolt", Lei 雷, are represented as follows: —

2° The constellation T'ien-kang 天罡, and the bowl of the Dipper, thus: —

3° The 72 malignant stellar gods, Ti-shah 地煞, thus: —

4° Thunder and lightning charms operate with more tremendous effect than others. The character Lei 雷 contains the component rain, but this is frequently omitted, so that 田 alone remains. The projecting spiral part signifies the flash. An increase of effect is obtained by writing two flashes. Such a display of power overawes all evil influences, and forces spectres, Kwei 鬼, to hide themselves (1). We have thus: —

As the shades of the dead, Kwei 鬼, roam abroad during night, they are sometimes represented by the moon, Yueh 月 (2), the orb of night.

(1) De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1040 (The War against spectres).

(2) See Vol. III. p. 237, 239, 250.

VII. Archaic, fanciful, and abridged forms of charm-writing.

1° The expression Ch'ih-ling 勅令, to command, order, special command of a god, is written thus: —

勅令 勅令 勅令 勅令 勅令 勅令 勅令

2° The final term of a charm, Yiu 由, henceforth, forthwith, is written thus: —

3° The signature of a god, or his pledging his word, Yih-p'ien Chung-sin 一片忠心, is thus abridged, a mere stroke fancifully denoting each character: —

一 片 忠 心
 一 | ▽ △

4° The radical Kung 弓, a bow, being a component part of the character Chang 張, denotes frequently Chang Tao-ling 張道陵, or Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master" (1); sometimes also Maitreya, Mi-leh-fuh 彌勒佛 (2), as it forms the first part of the character Mi 彌.

1) The first official head of the Taoist magical church. His name is inscribed on all charms. Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual. p. 10.

(2) The "Merciful One", who will succeed Buddha in the government of the world. He now resides in the Tuchita heavens, from which after a lapse of 5000 years, he will descend to the earth and open a new era. Eitel. Handbook of Chinese Buddhism. p. 70.—Vol. III. p. 252.

CHARM N° 7. FOR HASTENING DELIVERY (1).

Couched in thunder and lightning form (2).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

雷 Lei, thunder, lightning (3).

The upper part of all characters, that enter into the composition of these charms, is the abridged form of the word Lei 雷, lightning. The apparition of lightning is always accompanied with power and appalling rapidity. Similar are the effects of this charm, which invokes such a mysterious agency.

咸 Hsien, all, totally, reaching everywhere.

靈 Ling, effective, powerful.

無凝滯 Wu-ning-chi, nothing can impede, obstruct its action; irresistible.

雲 Yun, the clouds.

普 P'u, all, universal. Hwa 化 is understood. P'u-hwa 普化 totally changed into rain. The cloud, rift by the lightning, resolves itself into rain.

如 Jü, likewise, in a similar manner. Be it thus for this woman in labour; may the lightning open her womb, and enable her to bring forth her child!

II. Full reading of the text.

As lightning, that most powerful and irresistible element, rends the cloud and dissolves it into rain, so may it open the womb of this woman in labour, and hasten her delivery.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 6. Efficacious charm for hastening delivery. Ts'ui-sheng ling-fu 催生靈符.—Vol. II. p. 192.

(2) The use of thunder and lightning charms is an essential part of the magic of Taoist religion. De Groot. Vol. VI. p. 1040 (The War against spectres).

(3) Thunder, according to the Chinese, is produced by the Yin and Yang coming into mutual collision 陰陽以回薄而成。

Note. — Thunder, as the Chinese say, is “the great voice of Heaven”; its majestic roll inspires with involuntary terror. Its power is terrible, and nothing can be compared to the rapidity with which it acts. Terror, power and rapidity of action, such are the three feelings which Taoist priests, Tao-shi 道士, propose to develop. Thunder, according to their tenets, strikes fear into the demons, shatters their resistance, and obtains the desired result with lightning rapidity. It is for this reason that the reader shall find the word thunder, Lei 雷, employed frequently in the composition of charms, and especially in those used in difficult and urgent cases. In the eyes of Taoists, thunder has also another mysterious sense, and means the “super-human ministry” or assembly of gods, who preside over winds and storms (1).

It is, therefore, the gods of thunder and storms who are influenced through the agency of the charm, and on this principle is based its all-powerful efficacy (2).

(1) See Second Part, where full details will be given on this Ministry.

(2) “By means of charms and spells, Taoist priests, in all ages to this day, have made thunder, rain and snow, or stopped rainfall and made fair weather”. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1025.

CHARM N^o 7^{bis}. ALSO FOR HASTENING DELIVERY (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

雷 Lei, thunder. This is the same heading as in the preceding charm. It is a mandate, an order, despatched by the “Ministry of the thunderbolt”, for the purpose of 解 Kiai, opening, rending (the womb).

無 Wu, none, nothing. Let all obstacles be waived.

斬 Chan, promptly, quickly.

耳 Eul, homonym of 爾, also pronounced “Eul”, and meaning thou, thine.

肚 Tu, the womb.

生 Sheng, to bring forth, to be born.

II. Full reading of the text.

We, the gods presiding over the “Ministry of the thunderbolt”, hereby command that the womb of So-and-So be rent open. Let all obstacles be waived, and let the expected child be promptly brought forth (2).

(1) See Vol. I. p. 7. Another efficacious charm for hastening delivery.

(2) The power attributed in China to spells and charms is so great that we may call it unlimited. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1024.

N^o 30. PURIFYING CHARM BESTOWED BY LAO-TZE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

三 San, the Three.

教主 Kiao-chu, Teachers of religion, that is of Taoism. The three teachers of actual Taoism are: Yuen-she T'ien-tsun 元始天尊 (the Beginning, honoured in Heaven), Lao-tze 老子, and T'ung P'ien Kiao-chu 通天教主 (the universal teacher of religion).

This charm is, therefore, an order emanating from the "Three sovereign teachers", and commanding

獄神 Yuh-shen, the gods of Hades (to seize immediately).

魂 Hwun, the ghost, the shade.

身 Shen, the body, hence the soul and body of the deceased, and plunge them into the pond (outlined at the foot of the charm), in order that they may be purified from all stain of sin.

II. Full reading of the text.

The Three Great Teachers of Taoism command through the present written charm the gods of Hades (2) to plunge into the pond of living waters, the soul and body of the deceased, and purify him therein from all stain of sin.

(1) See on Lao-tze and this charm, Vol. I. p. 70.

(2) Amitabha, Ti-ts'ang-wang, Yen-wang, and the ten inferior gods who preside over the ten divisions of the Infernal regions (See Book I. p.64, 70, 71).

CHARM ASSURING A HAPPY REBIRTH (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

六甲 Luh-kiah, the gods Luh-kiah. The gods Luh-kiah, 六甲 and Luh-ting 六丁 (2) are twelve Taoist genii, corresponding to the twelve Yuen-kiah 元甲 of the Buddhist religion.

母 Mu, a mother.

子 Tze, a child.

The six Kiah gods promote at first the conception of the child in the womb of a mother, and then preside over its birth in the second part of the charm.

裙 K'iün, the plaited skirt of a woman's dress, a petticoat. This skirt is generally composed of eight plaits or folds, represented by the eight hexagons of the charm. This skirt, on being opened, allows the child to come forth.

門 Men, a gate, a doorway.

II. Full reading of the charm.

The six Kiah gods are ordered to introduce the child (in a new rebirth) into the womb of a mother (3), and opening her skirt, allow the new-born babe to come forth.

(1) See the doctrine of the metempsychosis by "way of rebirth". Vol. I. p. 137.

(2) According to the doctrine of the Taoists, the gods Luh-kiah and Luh-ting can move mountains and empty the seas 六甲六丁可以搬山倒海.—Williams and Giles translate 六甲 Luh-kiah by the gravid uterus, six months gone with child.

(3) The exorcated soul that seeks to be reborn enters the womb of a pregnant woman, and animates the fetus, which so far had but an inferior soul. Frequently it enters into the fetus in the latter stage of pregnancy, and then childbirth is generally advanced (Vol. I. p. 137).

N° 35. CHARM FOR HELPING WANDERING SOULS TO OBTAIN REBIRTH (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

靈 Ling. First character of the name of Ling-pao T'ien-tsun 靈寶天尊. It is written in a neglected running hand style. The "mystic jewel, honoured of Heaven", is one of the "Three Pure Ones", San-ts'ing 三清, or Taoist Trinity (2). This majestic Worthy, addressing himself to his inferiors, the spirits inhabiting the azure vault, cares little about fine writing, and so his orders are conched in a very abbreviated form and in neglected handwriting. Orders are therefore given 飛 Fei, to proceed quickly, to act with all despatch.

救 Kiu, and rescue, save, liberate.

魂 Hwun, the souls.

男 Nan, of men

女 Nü, and women.

Note. — This charm shows how Taoists have borrowed from Buddhists, and adopted their belief in regard to wandering souls. This is, no doubt, largely due to the desire of securing a share in the profits of the trade (3).

II. Full reading of the text.

Ling-pao T'ien-tsun 靈寶天尊, the "mystic jewel, honoured of Heaven", hereby orders the gods and spirits of Hades, to rescue the wandering souls of men and women, and lead them to a happy rebirth.

(1) See Vol. I, p. 77. Opening the ceremony of the Lemuria for the benefit of wandering souls.

(2) See Vol. II, note: the Taoist Trinity and the three Taoist heavens.

(3) The use of charms gives rise to a profitable trade, and when it occasionally languishes, alarming tales about dangerous spectres are circulated. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI, p. 1059.

N^o 36. CHARM OPENING THE PORTALS
OF THE BUDDHIST PARADISE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

三教 San kiao, the three religions. Frequently three horizontal lines, or the three marks juxtaposed at the heading of a charm, indicate the “three religions” of China: Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism. An order despatched collectively by these three religions cannot fail of a result. These three religions order

開 K'ai, to open

門 Men, the gate, the door.

天 T'ien, of heaven.

門 Men, and also the gate

地獄 Ti-yuh (2), of the earthly prison (the Buddhist purgatory).

月 Yueh, the moon, moonlight.

Disembodied souls, wander, as a general rule, during the night, hence the character Yueh 月 (moon) is used to denote all departed spirits.

出 Ch'uh, to go forth, to come out from.

II. Full reading of the text.

The “three religions” (Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism) order to throw open the portals of heaven, and let the victims of Hades sally forth in the night and enjoy perpetual happiness (3).

The intelligent reader can see hereby, how Taoists, Tao-shi 道士, have utterly no shame, and borrow from the religious systems of others, whatever may enhance the value of their wares. They thus afford the literati and pious Buddhists every opportunity for using their charms.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 78. Charm considered as the “key of heaven”.

(2) Corresponding to the Sanscrit “Naraka”, the abode of wicked men. See Vol. I. p. 152. note 1.

(3) See on the Buddhist paradise. Vol I. p. 130.

N^o 37. INFORMING THE RULER OF HADES (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅 Ch'ih, an order, a special or Imperial command.

三皇君 San-hwang-kiün, of the "Three Rulers" (2), the Three Principles.

雲 Yun, (to the spirits presiding over) the clouds.

雷 Lei, and the thunderbolt.

解 Kiai, to open, to release.

魂 Hwun, the soul.

獄 Yuh, a prison, Hades.

II. Full reading of the text.

Special order of the "Three Rulers" to the spirits presiding over the clouds and the thunderbolt to release from Hades such and such a soul.

This charm is common both to Buddhists and Taoists, as well as the letter of information delivered therewith. Taoists employ it in various parts of these provinces.

(1) Yen-wang. See Vol. I, p. 70, note 1.

(2) These are the ancient legendary emperors of China, Fuh-hsi, Shen-nung and Hwang-ti. In Taoist mythology they represent also a triad of subordinate divinities, who preside over heaven, earth and water. They are said to send down good and ill fortune on men, and save the lost (Edkins, Religion in China, p. 415).

K'ün added to the name is a term of respect, and answers to our, Sir, gentleman (Williams, Dictionary of the Chinese Language).

N^o 13. CHARM FOR THE BENEFIT OF A WOMAN
WHO DIED IN CHILDBIRTH (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

竹 Chuh, bamboo.

束 Tz'e, a prickle, a thorn on plants. The combination of these two characters form the word Ch'ih 策, which means an order emanating from a sovereign. Here the order emanates from Ling-pao T'ien-tsun 靈寶天尊, the "mystic jewel, honoured of Heaven", one of the "Three Rulers" presiding over the Taoist heavens (2).

主 Chu, here employed for Tso-chu 做主, to act with authority, to order as invested with all powerfulness.

五雷 Wu-lei, the five spirits presiding over the thunderbolt (3), namely Lei-tsu 雷祖 (the father of thunder), Lei-kung 雷公 (the ruler of thunder), Tien-mu 電母 (the mother of lightning), Fung-poh 風伯 (the ruler of the wind), and Yü-shi 雨師 (the master of the rain).

月 Yueh, the moon. In superstitious terminology, the moon is taken figuratively for the night, and through extension for the shades of the dead, Kwei 鬼, who roam about during night time. The moon, therefore, signifies here "Kwei-hwan" 鬼魂, the shade of the unborn child, that never saw the light of day, as its mother died before bringing it forth. The gods of the thunderbolt are ordered to extract it from its mother's womb, and for that purpose to produce the pangs of childbirth.

(1) See Vol. I, p. 86. Ceremony rescuing from the "bloody pond" the souls of women who have died in childbirth.

(2) See Vol. II, p. 206, note 2, the Taoist Trinity. Vol. III, p. 234.

(3) Taoist mythology resembles, in several points, that of many heathen nations. Some of its divinities personate beings supposed to reside in the various departments of Nature. One of these divinities is called the "Ruler of thunder", and another the "Mother of lightning". Edkins, Religion in China, p. 105.

陣 Ch'en, for Yih-ch'en — 陣, a crisis, a fit, as in violent pain, such as a woman would experience in childbirth.

II. Full reading of the text.

The all-powerful, Ling-pao T'ien-tsun 靈寶天尊, the “mystic jewel, honoured of Heaven”, hereby orders the five gods presiding over the thunderbolt, to extract violently from the womb of the mother the soul of such and such an unborn child.

The reader will not fail to remark here the quaint ideas entertained by pagan Chinese. This charm seems to take no concern in the welfare of the mother. In the order issued, mention is made only of the unborn child. Now, the necessary condition of the release of the mother from Hades is the welfare of the child, so that before considering her case, the soul of the child must be first attended to.

The unfortunate mother, who dies in childbirth, is regarded by pagans as an object of execration, the mere aspect of whom is odious in the eyes of “Heaven and Earth”. On the tumulus raised over her grave, is occasionally placed an old umbrella maintained open by means of a clump of earth. Its purpose is to hide the impure and sullied corpse, which offends the regard of Heaven (1). This custom is particularly prevalent at T'ung Chow 通州, in North Kiangsu 江北.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 57. -- p. 84, 85 -- p. 153, where these Buddhist tenets are also exposed.

THE SOUL OF A PERSON HANGED (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

主 Chu, a lord, a sovereign. The ruler of the underworld is the god Yen-wang 閻王, called also Kwei-chu 鬼主, the "Lord of Shades". Let Yen-wang, therefore, order

月 Yueh, that the moon, the night, during which shades roam abroad, the shade itself (2).

井 Tsing, a well, a deep pit. In mystic style, it represents a halter tied round the neck, King-sheng 頸繩, hence it signifies here the person hanged with a cord round the neck.

引 Yin, to lead, to bring forward.

天 T'ien, heaven (to heaven).

五彩雲 Wu-ts'ai-yun, the five-coloured clouds (3).

II. Full reading of the text.

Yen-wang 閻王, the Ruler of Hades, is hereby ordered to conduct to the Buddhist paradise, wafted on the five-coloured clouds, the soul of So-and-So, who has been hanged.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 88. According to Buddhist doctrine, all persons who have committed suicide are confined in a special place called "the city of suicide victims", and cannot be released therefrom except through the ministry of Buddhist priests.

(2) See Vol. III. p. 237.

(3) The Wu-ts'ai 五彩 or five colours, are blue, yellow, carnation, white and black (Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language).

NO. 15. CHARM DELIVERING FROM HADES THE SOUL
OF A PERSON WHO HAS BEEN ASSASSINATED (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

弓 Kung, a bow. Here the classifier, or first part of the name of Chang 張, that is Chang Tao-ling 張道陵, or Chang T'ien-shi 張天師. Chang, the "Heavenly Master" (2), head of the Taoist religion. This belongs to the class of spirit charms, in which the great "Heavenly Master" comes forward personally, and gives his orders.

場地 Ch'ang-ti, the place where the murdered person was killed.

坟地 Fen-ti, a burial place.

棺材 Kwan-tsai, a coffin.

人 Jen, a man (the person assassinated, whose corpse is here represented at the end of the charm).

II. Full reading of the text.

Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master", proceeds personally to the place where the murder occurred, and orders the victim's corpse to be encoffined and buried forthwith.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 89. The soul of a person assassinated roams about in the air, and pursues the assassin to be avenged on him. The encoffining of the corpse seems to fix the wandering soul in Hades. The same idea prevailed among the Greeks and Romans.

N^o 16. CHARM DELIVERING THE SOUL OF A PERSON
HARASSED BY EVIL SPIRITS (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

弓 Kung, a bow. Here, as in the preceding charm, it is the first part of the name Chang 張, written thus in an abbreviated form. Chang Tao-ling 張道陵 therefore comes forward and orders.

捕 Pu, to pursue, to capture.

天 Yao, the demons, "spooks", who have spirited away the life.

人 Jen. of this man.

II. Full reading of the text.

Chang Tao-ling 張道陵 comes personally to capture the maleficent spirits, who have caused the death of this man.

It is a well known fact that Chang, the "Heavenly Master", is a famous expeller and killer of demons (2), and that he pursues and punishes them for their misdeeds. Frequently, in Taoist annals, he and his successors are represented holding in their hands a "magic mirror" Chao-yao-king 照妖鏡 (3), whereby they detect all kinds of spectres. The vulgar generally believe that they can really unmask and capture these maleficent beings.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 90. Where this charm is found printed on yellow paper.

(2) His portrait is often suspended in houses and rooms, as also on outer walls, especially at the midsummer festival (about the 5th June). He is represented as a black, grim-looking, awe-inspiring figure, often seated on a tiger, the typical devil-destroying monster in China. He brandishes a sword received from heaven, and holds before his breast a "huuh" 笏, symbol of office for courtiers in ancient times. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI. p. 1184 (The War against spectres).

(3) Mirrors have peerless virtue for detecting spectres in animal shape. In ancient times, travelling Taoist doctors used to protect themselves by magic mirrors fastened on their backs. De Groot. loc. cit. p. 100 (Magic mirrors).

X 17. CHARM DELIVERING FROM HADES
THE VICTIM OF AN UNJUST LAWSUIT (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

王 Wang, a king, a ruler. Here, the ruler of Hades, Yen-wang 閻王, who comes and sits as judge at the grave of the victim, in order to avenge.

元 Yuen, the Commencement, the First Cause. This character heightens the effect of the written charm. It is like an ornamental flower vase, which charms the eye. The character is similar in sound with another Yuen 冤, which enters into the formation of the expression Shen-yuen 審冤, to judge, to redress an injustice, a wrong. There is obviously a pun on the word.

坎地 Fen-ti, a burial place, a grave.

二鬼 Eul-kwei. (summoning thereto) the two contending ghosts.

II. Full reading of the text.

Yen-wang 閻王, the ruler of Hades, summons to appear before his judgment seat, at the tomb of the victims, the two contending parties, in order to settle the disputed point raised between them as to the site of a burial place.

The reader must know that in China families frequently engage in long and expensive lawsuits concerning the site of old graves. The custom of burying the dead in the midst of the fields, as each one pleases, and the prevailing influence of geomancy, "Fung-shui" 風水, are powerful factors in stirring up hatred, which ends frequently only by the death or the final ruin of the contending parties.

張 Chang, Chang Tao-ling 張道陵, the official head of the Taoist church.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, who specially orders.

三魂 San-hwun, the three souls.

七魄 Ts'ih p'eh, and the seven senses; i.e, the corpse of the deceased (2).

肖 Siao, homonym used for Siao 消, to deliver from, to heal.

II. Full reading of the text.

Chang Tao-ling 張道陵 (official head of the Taoist church), comes personally beside the corpse of the deceased, and orders the wounds of his soul and body to be healed.

(1) See Vol. I. p. 92.

(2) The Hwun 魂 and P'eh 魄 are thus described in the Sing-ming Kwei-chi 性命圭旨 (treatise on the government of the inner man), written by the Taoist Yin 尹, of the Sung dynasty. It was first printed in 1615, and another edition was issued about 1670, in a large and handsome style. Wylie. Notes on Chinese Literature (Taoism). p. 222.

The Hwun 魂 (soul) emanates from the Yang 陽, or bright principle in Nature: the P'eh 魄, from the Yin 陰, or dark principle. The Hwun is manifested by the K'i 氣 (breath). This has a twofold movement, expansion and contraction, or inspiration and respiration. Man inhales air through the nasal organ, and expels it through the mouth. Inspiration is the expansive power of the active principle, respiration the contraction of the passive principle. The P'eh 魄 is the manifestation of natural energy, and this energy has also its active and passive aspect. The eye sees and the ear hears: vision is caused through the working of the active principle, and hearing through the working of the passive principle.

The tripartite Hwun 魂 and the septempartite P'eh 魄 is a peculiar Taoist doctrine, a new psychological tenet, opposed to the doctrine of the Ancients, and the orthodox school of Confucian philosophy. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. IV. p. 70 (On the multiplicity of the souls of man).

水 Shui, of the water (to rescue from the watery element with the instrument represented on the charm).

II. Full reading of the charm.

The spirit of the waters is hereby specially ordered to rescue the three souls (3) of such and such a drowned person.

1) See Vol. I, p. 93. Charm for the benefit of drowned persons.

2) According to the Cosmic notions of the Chinese, all Nature is animated. The sun, moon, stars, clouds, winds, rain, have all their presiding spirits. Others control the year, the seasons, months, hours and days. Mountains, hills, rivers, streams, have their gods. Taoists represent these under the most uncouth forms. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI, p. 929.

Chang T'ieu-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master", specially orders that the three souls of such a person, who died in prison, re-enter the womb of a mother, and be reborn into a new existence.

The reader may remark here how Taoists skillfully avail themselves of the Buddhist doctrine of the metempsychosis, universally admitted by the people. They borrow from the three religions whatever may promote the success of their charms and amulets.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

弓 Kung, a bow. Classifier or first part of the character Chang 張, that is Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master".

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, specially orders.

雷 Lei, the god of thunder, or Lei-kung 雷公, whose two outstretched arms are represented on the charm. With one hand, he brandishes his iron mallet, and in the other holds a chisel (2).

聲 Sheng, a sound, the rumbling of thunder.

II. Full reading of the text.

Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master", specially orders the god of thunder. Lei-kung 雷公, to hurl his bolt at the calumniator.

[1] See Vol. I, p. 95. Charm for delivering calumniated persons, rendering them justice, restoring their reputation, and punishing their calumniators.

[2] The Chinese animate thunder and lightning, and worship the gods who preside over these phenomena. The thunder-god is represented as a being in shape and appearance much like a cock, having four claws to each foot, and two hands proceeding from under the wings. CHARM RESCUING FROM THE BUDDHIST PURGATORY (1).
(Suspended in the Centre).

This ceremony is employed, as its name indicates, in delivering souls from the Buddhist purgatory, P'eu-ti-yuh 破地獄. When the Buddhist priests have assembled in the appointed place, the head-priest, Fah-hai Hwo-chang 法海和尚, takes in his hand a small wand (2), and brandishing it, outlines a charm in the four directions: he then returns to the centre, and outlines there a fifth charm, ordering that the portals of Hades be thrown open, and that the souls for whose benefit the ceremony has been performed, be forthwith released.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

This charm belongs to the class of religious magic for expelling spirits, ghosts and spectres. Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master" of the Taoist religion comes personally to enjoin his orders, and a picture of him is found at the head of the charm.

天罡 T'ien-kang. A large star, the god who presides over it. Buddhists reckon 36 stars in this constellation; the four, however, which form the bowl of the Dipper are specially called the T'ien-kang 天罡. Stellar gods are efficacious in counteracting the influence of evil stars, and protecting good folks.

怡 I, harmonious concord, in agreement with.

日月 Jeh, Yueh, the sun and moon, that is the sun-god and the moon-goddess.

七星 Ts'ih-sing, the 7 stars in the constellation of the Great Bear, Peh-teu-sing 北斗星.

學 Hsioh, a school, the learned, those who have mastered true wisdom, the heavenly enlightened.

鰲 Ngao (1), a huge sea-fish (allied to the turtle), that rescued Kw'ei-sing, 魁星 from the watery depths, and brought him to the surface, whence he ascended on high.

This fish is represented here with its heart, Sin 心, intestines, Ch'ang 腸 and liver, Kan 肝.

II. Full reading of the text.

Chang, the "Heavenly Master" is here, and commands the 36 spirits of the Dipper, T'ien-kang 天罡, the spirits dwelling in the Sun and Moon, the 7 gods of the Great Bear, all the heavenly host, and the spirit of the sea-monster, Ngao 鰲, that rescued Kw'ei-sing from the watery depths. Banish, therefore, all fear.

X 67. EXORCISING CHARM USED BY TAOISTS.

(When they perform the ceremony for rescuing departed souls "Ta-tsiao" 打醮) (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

三教勅令 San-kiao ch'ih-ling, special order emanating from the "three religions". This imparts to the charm a certain official character. Three lines placed horizontally at the heading of a charm signify generally the "three religions".

三元 San-yuen, the "three Principles" (2).

壺 Hu, a pot, a jug. Here employed for 互, also pronounced Hu, and meaning together, with. Owing to similarity of sound, a pun is made on the word. The accent on both is, however, different.

六地支 Luh-ti-chi, the six earthly branches. $6 + 6 = 12$. They represent 12 divinities.

These branches are divided into two sections, in order to facilitate the ornamental character of the charm. Each earthly branch is here represented by the sign: &.

來 Lai, to come.

蝠 Fuh, the bat. This animal is frequently drawn as the emblem of happiness, Fuh 福, from the similarity of sound which exists between the two words. This is the second pun which occurs in this charm.

十天干 Shih-t'ien-kan, the 10 celestial stems, or cyclic characters. Here they mean constantly, perpetually, as they are employed to designate all periods of time.

II. Full reading of the text.

By the authority of the "three religions", we hereby order that the "three Principles", together with the twelve spirits of the earthly branches, bestow abundant and perpetual happiness.

(1) See this ceremony described. Vol. I. p. 151.

(2) The three primitive Great Rulers. They were originally vast periods of time, like a geological epoch, but were subsequently personified and deified. They form to-day a peculiar Taoist triad. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language 元.

N^o 68. DEMON-EXPELLING CHARM EMPLOYED BY TAOISTS.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

教 門 Kiao-men, the gate of religion, that is the teacher, the head of the Taoist religion, Chang Tao-ling 張道陵.

右 Yiu, on the right. The right-hand side is the lower place in China, hence it here denotes a second or deputy. Lao-tze 老子 holds the highest or first place in the Taoist hierarchy, and Chang Tao-ling the second.

三 教 San-kiao. (in the name of) the "three religions". They are here represented by three circles placed at the head of the charm.

勅 令 Ch'ih-ling, specially orders, commands.

日 Jeh, the sun, the spirit of the sun (to shine upon).

門 Men, a gate, an outer door, the family in the house. Here the door is represented as open. Sunshine dispels darkness and evil spirits that roam about during night.

取 勝 Ts'ü-sheng, to lay hold on, to seize, to suppress and conquer. Chang T'ien-shi 張天師, Chang, the "Heavenly Master", as we know already, is the great expeller of spectres and ghosts.

吉 Kih, luck, happiness, prosperity, of good omen. All will then turn out well.

This character is placed at the end of the charm, as if it were an official order.

II. Full reading of the text.

The secondary head of Taoism, Chang Tao-ling 張道陵, commands in the name of the "three religions" that the sun, penetrating through the open doorway, enlighten by its rays the house of So-and-So, and dispel the noxious influences that dwell in the place, so that henceforth happiness may abide therein.

N° 70. CHARM PROTECTING FROM FIRE.
(Suspended towards the East).

The five following charms are spirit-charms. The spirits presiding over the 5 elements: metal, wood, water, fire and earth, protect the quarters entrusted to their care.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

東方 Tung-fang, the Eastern direction. At the top of the charm is represented the head of the spirit presiding over the element wood. This spirit controls the Eastern quarter of the world.

壺 Hu, a pot, a jug, a vase. The natives of Kiangsu 江蘇 and other provinces pronounce this character like Fu 符, a spell or charm to prevent evil. There is, therefore, a pun on the word. It means here a charm, and represents the spirit who controls the East. In places where Hu is not pronounced Fu, the pun is still maintained by confusing it with another Hu 護, to protect, to guard, which forms part of the expression Hu-fu 護符, a protecting charm.

木 Muh, wood, the element wood. This part of the charm is composed of an ancient form representing the character Muh 木, wood. The character represents here the spirit presiding over the element wood, and controlling the Eastern part of the universe. This spirit is called Muh-kung 木公, and also Tung-wang-kung 東王公, the king of the Immortals (1). He was born in the East, originating from the embrace of "Heaven and Earth" with the primitive matter of the Yang and Yin principles. Of imposing deportment and high stature, he clothed himself with green leaves and hawthorn flowers (2).

II. Full reading of the text.

Muh-kung 木公, the ruler of the element wood, protects through this charm the Eastern quarter.

(1) According to Taoist legend, one of the first beings evolved from chaos. He is the male patriarch of the genii and the husband of Si-wang-mu 西王母 (the Western Royal Mother), the queen of the immortal tribe. The original conception of such a personage arose from the desire to find a mate for the above fairy queen. Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual, p. 158.

(Suspended towards the South).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

南方 Nan-fang, the South. At the head of the charm is represented the spirit presiding over the element fire. This spirit controls the southern quarter of the world.

壺 Hu, a pot, a vase; employed here for Fu 符 charm, through a pun on the word, as already explained above (p. 256).

火 Hwo, fire, the spirit presiding over fire, the ruler of this element, who can, therefore, prevent fires, as he pleases (1).

南斗六星 Nan-teu luh-sing, the 6 stars or stellar gods, presiding over the South Pole. Because of their position, they are expected to lend their kind assistance to the god of the Southern region.

北斗七星 Peh-teu ts'ih-sing, the 7 stars in the constellation of the Great Bear. These stellar divinities are the assistants of the "god of water", and water is necessary to extinguish fires.

五斗 Wu-teu, the 5 constellations of the "five directions". These are also expected to help, each in its own sphere of influence.

II. Full reading of the text.

Charm emanating from Ch'ih Tsing-tze 赤精子, the "god of fire", together with his attendants, the six divinities of the South Pole, the seven divinities of the constellation of the Great Bear, and the five constellations presiding over the five directions of the universe.

(1) The god of fire is called Ch'ih Tsing-tze 赤精子 or Ch'ih Ti 赤帝 (the fiery ruler). He was born at Shih-t'ang-shan 石塘山, in the Southern quarter of the world, being evolved from the Yang and Yin primordial elements, assisted by the First Ancestor of all living beings, Hsüen-hsüen Shang-jen 玄玄上人 (the parent of the sombre heavens). His body was of a fiery colour, and his hair and beard of a bright red hue, resembling a flaming charcoal. He was garbed in a suit of reddish leaves. General Mirror of the Immortals, or Tales of the Genii, Shen-sien Tung-hien 神仙通鑿. Ch. I. art. 1.

N° 72. CHARM PROTECTING FROM FIRE.

(Suspended towards the West).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

西方 Si-fang, the West. At the head of the charm is represented the spirit presiding over the element metal. This tutelary god controls the Western quarter of the world.

庚辛 Keng-sin, the seventh and eighth of the 10 stems, or cyclic characters, employed here by Taoists, Tao-shi 道士, to designate the West. These two cyclic characters represent each a divinity, and these are summoned to bear assistance to the chief god of the West.

金 Kin, gold, the element metal, which presides over the West. The "Golden Mother", Kin-mu 金母, holds sway over the region. This goddess is identified with the "Western Royal Mother", Si-wang-mu 西王母, head of the tribe of the genii. Dwelling in her fairy palace on the K'uen-lun 崑崙 mountains (1), she is said to have convoked to an annual banquet, P'an-t'ao-hwei 蟠桃會, all the gods, sharing with them her magnificent peaches, which confer immortality. Born of the Yang and Yin elements, beneath the influence of "Heaven and Earth", she is represented in Taoist lore with her hair bound up in a knot and tied over the head. Her teeth resemble those of a tiger: she wears a heavy jade necklace, and is dressed in a skirt made of mulberry leaves. Such indeed is the aspect she bore when she first made her appearance in this mortal world (2).

II. Full reading of the text.

Charm emanating from the "Golden Mother", Kin-mu 金母, who, together with the two cyclic gods of the West, protects this region from all danger of fire.

北方 Peh-fang, the North. At the head of the charm is the “god of water”, who presides over the Northern region.

北斗七星 Peh-teu ts'ih-sing, the 7 stars in the constellation of the Great Bear.

水 Shui, water, the god of the watery element (1).

高矮 Kao-ngai, high and low, hills and valleys (2).

扁 Pien, flat, thin.

II. Full reading of the text.

Charm emanating from Shui Tsing-tze 水精子, the “god of the watery element”, presiding over the Northern region, together with the 7 stellar gods of the Great Bear, to whom belongs the function of distributing water in all ponds and reservoirs, enabling thereby to extinguish fires.

(1) He was born at Ts'ang-lang 倉浪, in the Northern region. The First Ancestor of the sombre heavens, Hsüen-hsüen Shang-jen 玄玄上人, gave him the name of Shui Tsing-tze 水精子 (the azure son of the water). His features were exceedingly handsome, and his garments were made from the bark of the ebony tree. It is for this reason that black is the special colour of the North. He bears a long staff in his hand. General Mirror of the Immortals, Shen-sien t'ung-kien 神仙通鑑 Ch. I, art. I.

(2) To this god belongs the distribution of water over the surface of the earth, examining how to equalize its flow over mountains and valleys, so that all regions may be provided therewith for extinguishing fires.

N^o 71. CHARM PROTECTING FROM FIRE (1).

(Suspended in the Centre).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

中央 Chung-yang, the Centre. At the head of the charm is represented the spirit presiding over the Centre.

土 T'u, earth, the element earth, the fifth of the five elements known as Wu-hsing 五行 (2). This element is presided over by a spirit, who originated in the centre of the earth from the combined action of heat and moisture. The very aspect of his square body, his round head, and his intelligent forehead betokened him as the offspring of heaven. As soon as he was born he stood erect, glanced over the horizon, and contemplated, filled with admiration, the rising of the sun and the setting of the moon. Suddenly from a large central star arose a white luminous trail, which fell upon the earth and advanced towards him. A genius similar to himself, but of loftier stature and shining like gold, appeared beside him. This was the "ruler of the sombre heavens", Hsüen-hsüen Shang-jeu 玄玄上人 (3), the primordial ancestor, who made him a loin-cloth from plants, and bestowed on him the title of Hwang-lao 黃老, or "Yellow Ancient" (4).

This spirit employs in the administration of his functions.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 164. Charms protecting from fire.

(2) These 5 primordial essences, or active principles of Nature, are water, fire, wood, metal and earth. Upon them the whole scheme of Chinese philosophy, cosmogony and divination, as originated in the Great Plan "Hung-fan" 洪範, of the Book of Records, is based. Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual, p. 313.

(3) This god is also called Hsüen-ti 玄帝, or Hsüen-t'ien Shang-ti 玄天上帝, and is practically identified with the North Pole. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language. Shang-jeu 上人 added to his name means Superior, Master, Venerable.

(2) See Vol. I, p. 142 note 1 and 2. The 10 celestial stems and the 12 earthly branches.

(3) Said to have lived under the T'ang 唐 dynasty (7th century). His picture is affixed to doors and gates for the purpose of expelling spectres, especially those of diseases in Summer. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI, p. 1178.

N° 77. CHARM FOR CURING A PERSON
BORN IN THE "TSE" YEAR OF THE RAT (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

The 12 following charms belong to the class of those in which a spirit or god is supposed to reside. The 12 gods, who preside over the twelve earthly branches (2) are "super-human powers", to whom prayers are addressed, in order to cure persons born in the year over which they preside.

子 宮 Tze-kung. At the head of the charm is represented the palace or mansion, in which resides the spirit presiding over the earthly branch Tze 子.

This spirit is known as K'uen-tun 困 敵. He is the eldest brother of Ti-hwang 地 皇 (3).

三 災 San-tsai, the three calamities, afflictions, divine visitations. A stereotyped phrase meaning all kinds of misfortune, misery, and suffering in general.

凶 Hsiung, danger, evil, bad luck.

全 Ts'üen, completely, wholly, entirely.

去 K'ü, to dismiss, to remove, to expel.

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit K'uen-tun 困 敵, who controls the earthly branch Tze 子, orders all misfortunes and calamities to be wholly removed.

(1) See Vol II, p. 167. The 12 wonderful therapeutic charms.

(2) The 12 branches are thus enumerated by the Chinese: Tze 子, Ch'eu 丑, Yin 寅, Mao 卯, Ch'en 辰, Sze 巳, Wu 午, Wei 未, Shen 申, Yiu 酉, Hsih 戌, Hai 亥. Combined with the 10 stems, they form the sexagenary cycle, invented, it is said, B.C. 2637, and designed to give names to years. Other combinations with the 5 elements, the symbolical animals and the zodiacal signs, play a great part in divination and furnish the groundwork for the soothsayer's skill. Mayers. Chinese Reader's Manual, p. 349.

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions" (2).

陰陽 Yin-yang (3), the passive and active principles of Nature, whence emanate all living beings.

田 T'ien, a field, cultivated land. Here the whole human body. The Yin and Yang principles of the human body being in perfect harmony, all illness will be dispelled.

十二地支 Shih-eul ti-chi, the 12 earthly branches, divided into two series, six on each side, for ornamental purposes.

This means that the disease will disappear, not only during the year designated by the character Ch'eu 丑 (second of the duodenary series) but also during the other eleven, that is during one's whole lifetime

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit who controls the earthly branch Ch'eu 丑, orders in the name of the "three religions", the Yin and Yang principles to maintain harmony in the body of such and such a person, so that he may enjoy health during his whole lifetime.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 167.

(2) Namely Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism.

(3) The Yang principle represents light, warmth, heat and life; the Yin, darkness, cold and death. They are engaged in a perpetual struggle manifested by alternations of warmth and cold. Man is affected by both, and his well-being consists in their mutual harmony. De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. VI, p. 930.

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

慧星 Hwui-sing, a propitious, a lucky star, a stellar god who bestows favours on mortals (3).

田 T'ien, a field, cultivated land. Here, the whole human body.

四季 Sze-ki, the four seasons: Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter.

四時 Sze-shi, at all times.

和合 Hwo-hoh, harmony of the humours, good health.

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit Sheh-t'i-koh 攝提格, who presides over the earthly branch Yin 寅, orders in the name of the "three religions" the stellar god Hwui 慧, to maintain harmony of the humours in the body of such and such a person, so that he may enjoy perfect and ever unflinching health throughout lifetime.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 167.

(2) This is the third of the twelve branches. It is symbolised by a tiger, and connected with wood (one of the five elements). It denotes also the hour 3 to 5 a.m. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language 寅.

(3) Some Greek philosophers supposed the stars to be living beings and divine. The Taoists believe in a doctrine like this. Among Chinese divinities, many are star-gods. The stars are regarded as the sublimated essences of things. These star-gods revolve in the vast sea of ether of which our atmosphere forms the lower and grosser part. They look down from their region of purity and stillness on the world beneath, and they influence the actions of men invisibly, but most powerfully. Edkins. Religion in China, p. 106.

(2) The Dipper is regarded as his palace. Formerly a mortal, he was deified by the Emperor Yen-yiu 延祐 (A.D. 1314) of the Yuen 元 or Mongol dynasty. He is nowadays in China the "god of Literature" and is worshipped by all students. A small temple is erected to him on the East side of the entrance to Confucian temples. In pictures of him, he is represented as a demon-like personage, standing on one leg, and with the other kicking the Dipper. He holds in one hand an immense pencil, and in the other a cap for graduates. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

南斗六星 Nan-teu luh-sing, the six stars of the South Pole, whose ruler is the "god of Longevity".

北斗七星 Peh-teu ts'ih-sing, the seven stars in the constellation of the Great Bear. All these spirits of the Northern region are under the control of Chen-wu 眞武, a famous exorcist and slayer of demons.

金鵬鳥 Kin-p'eng-niao, the golden-winged roc or "rukū" bird (2). This bird is sacred to Sakyamuni, and a picture of it is frequently found on Buddhist charms. It wards off all evil influences that cause diseases.

翅膀 Ch'i-pang, the wings (of the bird). These are represented at the foot of the charm.

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit who presides over the earthly branch Wu 午, orders in the name of the "three religions", the six stellar gods of the South Pole, the seven gods in the constellation of the Great Bear, and the golden-winged roc bird, Kin-p'eng 金鵬, to expel all malignant influences which have caused this disease.

(1) See Vol. II p. 167.

(2) In Sanscrit "Garuda", the king of birds and the constant companion of Vishnu, from whom Buddha borrowed it. A fabulous bird of prey of monstrous size, famous in oriental mythology, and corresponding to the Persian "Simurg" and the Arabic "Anka". BORN IN THE "YU" YEAR OF THE COCK (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

西宮 Yiu-kung, the palace of the spirit who presides over the earthly branch Yiu 酉. His name is Tsoh-ngoh 作龍, tenth brother of Ti-hwang 地皇.

三教勅令 San-kiao ch'ih-ling, special order of the "three religions".

王(靈官) Wang-ling-kwan, a Taoist god (2).

井 Tsing, a well, a deep pit. Allusion is here made to the pagan custom of burning incense on the brink of the well before drawing water from it. This water is used afterwards in making a decoction of medicinal plants for curing diseases.

去 K'ü, to expel, to remove, to cure a disease.

病 Ping, sickness, illness, an ailment.

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit Tsoh-ngoh 作龍, who presides over the earthly branch Yiu 酉, orders in the name of the "three religions", Wang-ling-kwan 王靈官 to impart to the water of the well the power of curing this disease.

N° 87. CHARM FOR CURING A PERSON

BORN IN THE "HSÜH" YEAR OF THE DOG (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

戌宮 Hsüh-kung, the palace of the spirit who presides over the earthly branch Hsüh 戌. His name is Yeu-meu 闍茂 (2), eleventh brother of Ti-hwang 地皇.

三教勅令 San-kiao ch'ih-ling, special order of the "three religions".

臣 Ch'en, a minister, a courtier. Chinese statesmen use it for I in their memorials: I, the high officer.

六丁 Luh-ting, the six gods Luh-ting.

六甲 Luh-kiah, the six gods Luh-kiah (3).

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit Yeu-Meu 闍茂, who presides over the earthly branch Hsüh 戌, is ordered in the name of the "three religions", to proceed personally to the patient's bedside, together with the 12 cyclic gods Luh-ting and Luh-kiah, and restore him to health.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 167.

(2) This cyclic god was originally the eleventh brother of the "heavenly ruler" T'ien-hwang 天皇, a fanciful Taoist deity like the "earthly ruler". The latter had but 10 brothers, and so borrowed two from the "heavenly ruler" to complete the number of his 12 branch gods (See Part II, Ch. III, art 17, The Chinese Pantheon).

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

天罡 T'ien-kang, the four stars in the bowl of the Dipper (3).

八卦 Pah-kwa, the eight diagrams, said to be invented by Fuh-hsi 伏羲, and deemed all-powerful for expelling demons and noxious influences known as Pih-sieh 逼邪 (4).

八節 Pah-tsieh, the 8 regular periods or divisions of time, that is the solstices, equinoxes, and the beginning of the four seasons. The popular expression Sze-shi pah-tsieh 四時八節 (4 seasons and 8 periods), means the whole year round, constantly, unflinchingly.

亥 Hai, the name and signature of the cyclic god himself.

II. Full reading of the text.

The spirit who presides over the earthly branch Hai 亥, orders in the name of the "three religions", the four stellar gods of the Dipper, T'ien-kang 天罡, assisted by the magic power of the eight diagrams, to expel all pernicious and spectral influences. Signature of the cyclic god Hai 亥 himself.

(1) See Vol. II. p. 167.

(2) Originally the 12th son of the "heavenly ruler" T'ien-hwang 天皇, he was transferred to the "earthly ruler" Ti-hwang 地皇, and became the god presiding over the twelfth earthly branch (See Part II. Ch. III. art. 17. The Chinese Pantheon).

N° 89. CHARM PRESERVING FROM AN EPIDEMIC, 1907 (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

五 Wu, five.

雷 Lei, thunder, the god of the thunderbolt and his assistants. These are Lei-tsu 雷祖, the father of thunder, and his 4 associates, namely the god of the thunderbolt, the mother of lightning, the ruler of the wind (the Chinese Æolus) and the master of rain (2).

The expression Wu-lei 五雷 has also another mysterious meaning, and signifies the super-human ministry, or assembly of gods, who preside over thunder, winds and storms.

鎮 Chen, to guard, to protect, to restrain and forestall evil influences, as pagodas or peaked hills do.

II. Full reading of the text.

The five gods, presiding over the "Ministry of the thunderbolt", protect this abode from all evil influences (3).

(1) See Vol. II, p. 168, where this charm is briefly described.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 230, 231, 237, 246 note 2.

(3) Demons and spectres perform in the universe the leading part in the distribution of evil, and hence visit mankind with disease. The disastrous influence of demons is never so much felt and feared as in times of epidemics. A roaring trade is then driven in charms, amulets, and demon-expelling medicines. 三清 San-ts'ing, the "Three Pure Ones", who compose the Taoist Trinity (2).

六丁 Luh-ting, the six cyclic gods Luh-ting (3).

凶 Hsiung, evil, malevolent, wicked, cruel (4).

神 Shen, demons, spectres. That is those malignant beings that spread epidemics and cause desolation in the world.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "Three Pure Ones", forming the Taoist Trinity, order the six cyclic gods Luh-ting 六丁, to expel all malignant demons and spectres that cause epidemics.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 169.

(2) The Taoist Trinity or "Three Pure Ones" are Yuh-hwang 玉皇, the Pearly Emperor, and chief god of the Taoist Pantheon: Tao-kün 道君 and Lao-tze 老子. They are also called T'ien-pao 天寶, Ling-pao 靈寶, and Shen-pao 神寶, or the heavenly, the mystic, and the spiritual jewel respectively. They inhabit the Three Taoist heavens Yuh-ts'ing 玉清 (the Pearly Azure), Shang-ts'ing 上清 (the Upper Azure), and T'ai-ts'ing 太清 (the Supreme Azure). These abodes are 3 parts, into which Taoists divide the primordial cosmic space. See Vol. II, p. 206. — Part II, Ch. I, art. 2.

(3) See on these cyclic and horary gods. Vol. III, p. 233, 266.

(4) Hsiung 凶, pernicious or baneful in general. It is the opposite of Kih 吉 felicity, which the Shen 神, or good spirits and gods bestow, especially in requital of sacrifices offered to them. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. V, p. 466 (Demonology).

N^o 91. TAOIST CHARM FOR WARDING OFF
CONTAGIOUS DISEASES (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

曰 Yueh, to utter, to prescribe, to order.

火 Hwo. fire, to burn, to consume. The trigram Li 離 ☲ (2), thirtieth of the 64 diagrams, or fifth of the 8 diagrams, refers to brightness, and signifies fire.

八卦 Pah-kwa, the eight diagrams (3).

山 Shan, a mountain, hills, heights. The trigram Ken 艮 ☶, third of the eight diagrams, corresponds to mountains.

This charm alludes to a custom, which unfortunately prevails in many parts of China. At the close of the Autumn season, the dry grass on mountain sides is set on fire. During the night, the hill-sides appear all ablaze, and immense streaks of fire curl and ascend to the summit. The whole population of the country goes out to contemplate the spectacle. Taoist priests, Tao-shi 道士 urge the people to this practice, as it is considered necessary for the expulsion of evil spirits. It is mainly for the purpose of expelling demons and spectral influences that the mountain is set on fire.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "three religions" prescribe that the mountain be set on fire, in order to expel all malignant demons that cause epidemics.

(1) See Vol. II, 170. Charm for warding off contagious diseases.

(2) The Author follows the posterior arrangement of the 8 diagrams, adopted from a passage in the Confucian commentary. Legge says on this trigram, "it represents fire and light, and the sun as the source of both of these. Its attribute is brightness" (The Yih-king, 30th trigram, p. 121, Oxford Edition, 1882).

(3) See Vol. II, p. 223, note 1. Their origin and use in divination and geomancy.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, special order, an Imperial command. The order is here given by Yuh-hwang 玉皇, the "Pearly Emperor", and chief god of the Taoist pantheon (2).

雷公 Lei-kung, the god of thunder.

雲板 Yun-pan, the cloudy board. In China, visitors are announced at the residence of an official or monastery by tapping an iron plate. Magistrates also use a similar slip of wood or ivory, and strike therewith the desk when giving sentence against criminals. Here the thunder-god wields his mallet and chisel to produce the thunderbolt.

鬼王 Kwei-wang, the king of the demons.

妖 Yao, a sprite, an imp; an ominous, ill-boding, evil-producing ghost (3).

煞 Shah, baleful, malignant, murderous (4). Here the 72 stellar gods known as Ti-shah 地煞, enemies of man and causes of all infirmities and ailments.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "god of thunder" is hereby specially ordered to take his mallet and chisel, and strike with the thunderbolt the king of the demons, all mischievous spectres, and the malignant stellar gods Ti-shah 地煞, who cause infirmities and ailments.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 171.

(2) See Vol. II, p. 206, note 2,--p. 210, note 3.

(3) To denote that a "Kwai" 怪 (haunting ghost) bears a malevolent character, the word Yao 妖 is often prefixed to it. It is also used substantively for "spooks". De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. IV, p. 430.

(4) This word means "murderous, killing", hence all dangerous influences, and whatever destroys the happiness of man. De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. V, p. 768.

N° 93. CHARM FOR STOPPING VOMITING (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

佛 Fuh, the Chinese name of Buddha.

普化 P'u-hwa, to change totally, to cure.

Buddhist priests invoke Buddha in their litanies, under the title of "universal healer, honoured of Heaven", P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊. Another healing Buddha, Yoh-shi-fuh 藥師佛 (2), is also invoked under the same title. This charm is based on the all-powerfulness of Buddha's name, and the magic formula "Om! mani padme hum" (3), Oh! the jewel of creation in the Lotus (4), which the Chinese transliterate as follows: Nyau-ma-gui-hung 唵嘛呢轟. Thanks to Buddha and this magic formula.

六日乃順 Luh-jeh nai-shun, the six days will be prosperous, that is one's whole life.

一片忠心 Yih-p'ien chung-sin, I pledge you my word.

II. Full reading of the text.

I, Buddha, the "universal healer" of mankind, hereby deliver thee from this ailment through the magic formula "Om! mani padme hum", Oh! the jewel of creation in the Lotus. Henceforth may happiness attend thee all the days of thy life. My word is pledged thereto.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 172.

(2) Baisha-jyaguru Buddha, the healing teacher. This fabulous Buddha removes suffering and lengthens life. He is in fact but the symbol of these two ideas. He is assisted by a pair of medical Bodhisattvas, Yoh-tsang and Yoh-wang. His palace is in the Eastern part of the Buddhist universe. Edkins, Chinese Buddhism, Ch. 13, p. 235.

(3) These Tibetan words are a powerful charm against evil and ward off noxious influences. There are not, however, as popular in China as they are in Tibet, where they are seen everywhere inscribed on pillars, walls etc. Eitel, Sanscrit-Chinese Dictionary, p. 87.

(4) The Lotus-flower is the symbol of the evolution of Buddhist worlds from eternal cosmic matter. Beal, A Catena of Buddhist Scriptures from the Chinese, p. 11.

N^o 91. CHARM FOR RELIEVING EXCESSIVE THROBBING
OF THE HEART (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, an Imperial command. Here it emanates from one of the great Taoist divinities (2).

唵 Ngan, equivalent to "Om", the first word in the Tibetan incantation "Om' mani padme hum". Taoists have borrowed this magic formula from Buddhists, and employ it whenever opportunity offers. By simply uttering this simple word "Om", or its Chinese equivalent "Ngan", all diseases are cured. This word "Ngan" resembles in sound another "Ngan" 安, meaning peace, health, hence through a pun on the word, the latter idea is that conveyed here to the reader.

十天干 Shih-t'ien-kan, the 10 heavenly stems, that is throughout the whole year, constantly, unfaillingly.

六丁 Luh-ting, the six cyclic gods Luh-ting.

七星 Ts'ih-sing, the 7 stars in the constellation of the Great Bear. Together with the 6 cyclic gods, they counteract and destroy demons in the world.

朋 P'eng, friends, associates. Let these gods co-operate in order to expel the maleficent spirits, who cause the disease.

II. Full reading of the text.

The supreme Taoist divinity hereby orders that health be restored. Let the six cyclic gods Luh-ting, and the seven stars in the constellation of the Great Bear, unite their efforts, and expel the evil spirits that cause this disease.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 173. This charm is first pasted over the chest, then burnt, and the ashes mingled with wine, are administered to the patient.

(2) Yuh-hwang 玉皇, the "Pearly Emperor", or another of the Taoist Trinity. See Vol. II, p. 206, note 2.

N^o 95. CHARM FOR EXPELLING TYPHOID FEVER (1).

This charm comprises three distinct parts.

1^o Superscription.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

真 Chen, employed here for 鎮 (Chen), to repress, to guard, to protect.

全 Ts'üen, entirely, completely, perfectly.

聖 Sheng, holy, sacred, divine.

扞 Sheh, employed here for 攝 (Sheh), to pursue and seize, to help.

Full protection and divine help are hereby granted.

2^o The spell.

1^o Let the spirits who preside over the volcanoes of the East approach.

2^o Let the spirits who control the noonday fiery chariot arrive.

3^o Let the ferocious tigers, who escort the setting orb of the West, advance.

4^o Let the "god of fire", assistant of Chen-wu 真武 (one of the Immortal warriors), who presides over the North Pole, come thither.

5^o Let the Unicorn, that controls the central fire of the earth, arrive, and roast (2) the maleficent spirits who cause this disease (3).

(1) See Vol. II, p. 174.

(2) The names and titles of various gods are inscribed upon charms. By burning them, demons are most successfully caught, fettered, imprisoned, tortured, burned, roasted, killed and drowned. De Groot, The Religious System of China. Vol. VI, p. 1044.

(3) One may ask who are all these demons? They are of the kind that produce cold chills, and have caused the first shivering of the fever in the patient. These are the real guilty wretches. Such at least is the popular idea, which, far from considering typhoid fever as a disease caused by heat, holds it rather to be caused by a chill or cold. Shang-han-ping 傷寒病 (illness caused by cold).

抹 Moh, to wipe clean to obliterate, to dispel.
惡 Ngoh, evil, wickedness.
壯 Chwang, robustness, health.
安 Ngan, peace, tranquillity, contentment.
機 Ki, an occasion, an opportunity, a chance.
乞 K'ih, to give, to grant.

II. Full reading of the text.

Pay heed, Oh! Dragon of fire, and behead those malignant demons, dispel the present dire disease, and avail thyself of the opportunity to grant health and peace of mind to the patient.

(1) The Sieh 邪 are abnormal, incorrect breaths or influences, spectres that cause disease. De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. V, p. 467 (Demonology).

N^o 96. CHARM FOR CURING PERSISTENT

由 Yiu, henceforth.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "god of thunder", Lei-kung 雷公 (3), from his seat amidst the clouds, specially orders that this ailment be henceforth cured.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 175. This charm is thus administered. Turnips are boiled down to a pulp and strained off. The paper charm is then burnt, and the ashes mingled with the decoction are given to the patient as a medicinal nostrum.

(2) The use of thunder and lightning charms is an essential part of the magic of Taoist religion. De Groot. The Religious System of China. Vol. VI, p. 1040 (The War against spectres).

Nº 97. CHARM CURING FROM DROPSY (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, an Imperial command.

三災 San-tsai, the three misfortunes, calamities. A Chinese expression meaning all kinds of suffering, misfortune in general. Only the upper part of the character tsai is drawn, but in magic style it is customary to read the "three misfortunes".

先 Sien, former, previous, that is the previous swelling. This is represented by the angle of the character Fung 風, wind, as if the wind swelled the abdomen of the patient.

小肚 Siao-tu, the region of the bladder.

雪 Hsüeh, snow, congealed rain, water which swells the abdomen.

十天干 Shih-t'ien-kan, the 10 heavenly stems (2), i.e. the whole year round, constantly, perpetually.

II. Full reading of the text.

A divine order is hereby issued, commanding that all pain, the previous swelling of the abdomen, and the water which caused it, disappear for ever.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 176. The written charm must be first pasted over the abdomen. It is then burnt, and the ashes are administered to the patient.

(2) See on these heavenly stems. Vol. I, p. 142, note 1. Vol. III, p. 262, note 2.

N° 98. CHARM CURING ALL KINDS OF HEART TROUBLE, HEADACHES AND DYSPEPSY.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

This charm comprises three distinct divine mandates.

1°

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, an Imperial command.

四天王 Sze-t'ien-wang, the four demon-kings, who guard the four quarters of the world from Asuras (monsters).

鬼 Kwei, the demon, the spectre that is endeavouring to enter the body of the patient, and attacks his head and heart, in order to supplant his soul.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special divine order.

八卦 Pah-kwa, the eight diagrams, attributed to Fuh-hsi 伏羲, and employed by the Chinese for purposes of divination and geomancy.

3°

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, a divine mandate.

治 Chi, to govern, to rule.

煞 Shah, malevolent ghosts, the 72 stellar gods known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

由 Yiu, henceforth.

II. Full reading of the text.

The four demon-kings, who guard the four quarters of the Buddhist world, are hereby ordered to expel the malignant demon, that endeavours to enter the body of So-and-So, and supplant his soul.

It is hereby enjoined to employ the "eight diagrams", in order to discover the author of the ailment, and expel all maleficent influences.

A special order is hereby issued to disarm the malignant stellar gods, enemies of man's happiness, so that the patient may henceforth enjoy perfect health and happiness.

N<sup>o</sup> 99. CHARM SIMILAR TO THE PRECEDING ONE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, an Imperial command.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "god of thunder", the five gods presiding over the "ministry of the thunderbolt", especially the "mother of lightning", T'ien-mu 電母, and the "ruler of the wind", Fung-p'eh 風伯 (2).

風 Fung, the wind, a gale, a breeze.

火 Hwo, the fire. In the ordinary opinion of the people, the greater part of these diseases or ailments are held to be caused by the wind or excessive heat, hence they are generally called Fung-p'ing 風病, Hwo-p'ing 火病 (wind and heat diseases).

星 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a large star, the god who presides over it. Buddhists reckon 36 stars in this constellation; the four, however, which form the bowl of the Dipper, are specially called the T'ien-kang 天罡 (3).

II. Full reading of the text.

The "ministry of the thunderbolt" is hereby specially ordered to counteract the influence of the wind and heat, and the 36 stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, are to help in fully restoring the patient's health.

---

(1) See Vol. II. p. 178. This charm is but a variety of the preceding one. The purpose and method of employing it are also identical.

(2) See Vol. III. p. 230, 231, 237, 246, where the names of these gods are found, and their various functions described.

(3) See Vol. III. p. 253. Stellar gods are efficacious in counteracting the influence of evil stars, and protecting good folks.

N° 100. CHARM RELIEVING FROM COUGH (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

雷 Lei, thunder, the five gods presiding over the "ministry of the thunderbolt" (2).

令下 Ling-hsia, to enjoin, to command.

壺 Hu, a pot, a jug. Here used for Fu 符, a charm. In several places throughout Kiangsu 江蘇, these two words are similarly pronounced, hence one is easily employed for the other.

正治 Cheng-chi, to govern, to rule, to reduce to order.

魔 Mo, a malignant spirit, a goblin, a devil.

煞 Shah, murderous, noxious, baleful influences. Here the 72 malignant stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

王靈官 Wang-ling kwan, a Taoist god (3).

符 Fu, a charm.

正治出斬 Cheng-chi ch'uh-chan, to reduce to order and behead.

鬼王 Kwei-wang, the ruler of the demons.

II. Full reading of the text.

The gods, presiding over the "ministry of the thunderbolt", hereby command that the evil spirits and the 72 malignant stellar divinities, Ti-shah 地煞, who have caused this ailment, be reduced to order. Let Wang-ling-kwan 王靈官 also write out a charm for the purpose of muzzling and beheading them, together with their maleficent ruler.

---

(1) See Vol. II p. 179. This charm is in great demand by old people during the severe winter months.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 230, 231, 237, note 3, 246

(3) See Vol. III, p. 269, where the genealogy, functions and worship of this god, are described.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 180. The eyes must be first rubbed with this marvelous charm. It is then burnt, and the ashes steeped in some beverage are administered to the sufferer.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 230, 231, 237, note 3, 246.

(3) Kwei 鬼, the disembodied spirit, a ghost, a spectre, a demon. The character is formed of a demon's head on a man's legs, with crafty added to denote its guile. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

N<sup>o</sup> 102. CHARM CURING FROM ASTHMA (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

奄 Ngan, Chinese transliteration of the Tibetan word “Om”.
Eh! now therefore!

六神 Luh-shen, the six household gods, Kin-ki 禁忌, or exorcising genii, who expel and destroy demons (2).

煞 Shah, baleful, malignant, murderous. Here the 72 maleficent stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, who obstruct the respiratory organs of the patient (3).

氣 K'i, the respiration, the breathing.

平 P'ing, regular, even.

II. Full reading of the text.

Eh! ye six household gods, Kin-ki 禁忌, expel quickly the maleficent stellar gods, Ti-shah 地煞, that obstruct the respiration of the patient, and let his breathing become regular.

---

(1) See Vol II, p. 181. This charm dries up the mucous membrane, and reduces the excessive need of expectorating. It is in great demand by those who live in damp and marshy places.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 261, where the names of these gods are found and their functions described.

MUCOUS EXPECTORATION (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, an Imperial command.

分付 Fen-fu, to enjoin, to urgently insist on, to reiterate an order (2).

先 Sien, past, former, previous.

腫 Chung, inflated, swollen.

消 Siao, to lessen, to diminish, to destroy.

策 Ch'eh, to enjoin as a superior, to order explicitly.

毒 Tuh, a poison, a virus.

散 San, dispersed throughout the organism.

普化 P'u-hwa, to change, to transform, to cure.

由 Yiu, henceforth.

II. Full reading of the text.

A divine order is hereby issued, commanding that all swelling disappear, and that the noxious virus disseminated throughout the body be destroyed, and may never again injure the patient.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 182. Old people esteem this charm a wonderful remedy, for relieving mucous expectoration and difficult breathing.

(2) The injunction is given twice, in order to express more explicitly the ruler's will.

N<sup>o</sup> 104. CHARM FOR RELIEVING INFLAMMATION
OF THE LUNGS AND CHEST (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

肉 Juh, flesh, the body of the patient. Let his whole body be refreshed by:

雪 Hsüeh, snow.

冰 Ping, ice.

霜 Shwang, hoar frost.

露 Lu, the dew.

寒 Han, cold.

凍 Tung, frost, to freeze, to congeal.

II. Full reading of the text.

Let the snow, ice, hoar frost, dew, wintry cold and frost, come and refresh the body of the patient.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 183. This charm is employed in cases of inflammatory diseases caused by the prolonged heat of the season. The written charm is burnt, and the ashes steeped in an infusion of plantain are administered to the patient.

N° 105. CHARM FOR STOPPING

PERSISTENT PERSPIRATION (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

This charm assumes that all abundant perspiration is caused by excessive internal heat, which must be allayed by all means.

霤 Liu, water dripping from the eaves, especially from icicles, when the thaw sets in.

凍 Tung, frost.

冰 Ping, ice.

霜 Shwang, frozen dew, hoar frost.

冷 Leng, cold, chilly.

王 Wang, i.e., Wang-ling-hwan 王靈官, a Taoist god (2).

雪山 Hsüeh-shan, the snow-clad mountains, glaciers.

加轟 Kiah-hung, to roll down with deafening roar, to precipitate.

止止 Chih-chih, to cease, to stop suddenly.

成斷 Ch'eng-twan, to be completely arrested, discontinued.

霜 Shwang, frozen dew, hoar frost. Let his body become as frozen.

II. Full reading of the text.

Let the dripping icicles, frost, ice, frozen dew and wintry cold, allay the heat of the patient's body: let Wang-ling-hwan 王靈官 precipitate upon him the mountain snows. Let the perspiration be stopped, and let his body become cold as icy water.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 184. This charm is administered as follows. Some grains of corn, already half-eaten by weevils, are boiled in water. The yellow-paper charm is then burnt, and the ashes mingled with the above decoction are administered to the patient. This remedy is of marvellous efficacy.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 269, where the genealogy, functions and worship of this god, are described.

N<sup>o</sup> 106. CHARM CURING FROM FEVER (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

佛 Fuh, the Chinese name of Buddha.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, orders, commands.

王靈官 Wang-ling-kwan, a Taoist god (2).

同 Tung, jointly, together with.

四天王 Sze-t'ien-wang, the four heavenly kings.

同 Tung, together with.

五方神 Wu-fang-shen, the spirits who preside over the five directions.

天罡 Tien-kang, the 36 auspicious stellar gods, that Buddhists place in the constellation of the Great Bear (3).

煞 Shah, baleful, malignant, murderous. Here the 72 stellar divinities, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

由 Yiu, henceforth.

II. Full reading of the text.

Buddha hereby orders Wang-ling-kwan 王靈官, assisted by the four heavenly kings, the spirits of the five directions, and the 36 auspicious stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, to expel forthwith the maleficent demons who have caused this fever.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 185. This charm is administered in a decoction of ginger.

(2) Such an order must in nowise surprise us in modern Buddhism. We shall see in Part II. Biography of gods and goddesses, that Wang-ling-kwan, though belonging to the Taoist pantheon, is also found at the entrance to Buddhist temples, where he acts as guardian, together with the four demon kings, or Maharajas.

N<sup>o</sup> 107. ANOTHER CHARM FOR ALLAYING FEVER HEAT (1).

This charm comprises two distinct parts, one the charm proper, and the other the incantation or spell.

The charm proper.

水 帝 Shui-ti, the god who presides over water; also known as Shui-kwan 水 官, the ruler of the watery element. He is the third of the "Three Primordial Powers" recognized by Taoist philosophy, viz., heaven, earth and water, over each of which a special deity presides.

The written charm is burnt, and over the ashes, placed in a vase, is pronounced the following spell.

The spell.

Let the gods who preside over the Nine Rivers of the Universe (2), and the rulers of the four great water-ways fill the atmosphere with snow, and cover the earth with hoar-frost. Let these orders be carried out without delay. Let the "Three Principles" the "Three Rulers", the "Three Emperors" (3) lend assistance, and allay forthwith the heat which has caused this fever.

---

(1) See Vol. II. p. 186.

(2) The Universe is China, the Ancients knowing no other country. The Nine Rivers are those whose course was regulated by Yü 禹 (B.C. 2205-2197). Among them are the Yangtze, the Han, Wei, Tsi, Hwai and Loh rivers. See Legge's Classics. Vol. III. p. 141 (The Tribute of Yü).

(3) These are the ancient legendary emperors of China, Fuh-hsi, Shen-nung and Hwang-ti. In Taoist mythology, they represent also a triad of subordinate divinities, who preside over heaven, earth and water. They are said to send down good and ill-fortune on men, and save the lost. Edkins. Religion in China. p. 115. — See also Vol. III. p. 254.

X 108. CHARM FOR DISPELLING SADNESS
AND ANXIETY (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, a divine command.

五雷 Wu-lei, the five spirits presiding over the thunderbolt (2)

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods (3).

止 Chi, to arrest, to stop.

病 Ping, the ailment, the pain.

II. Full reading of the text.

It is hereby enjoined upon the five gods presiding over the "Ministry of the thunderbolt", and the 36 stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, to restore the patient to health, and dispel all sadness and anxiety which prey on his mind.

---

1) See Vol. II, p. 187. This charm is first affixed in the patient's bedroom. It is then burnt, and the ashes steeped in tea are administered to him.

(2) See on these thunder gods, Vol. III, p. 230, 237, note 3, 246.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅 令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, a divine command.

黑 雲 Heh-yun, dark, black clouds, that is sickness and calamity.

身 Shen, the human body, which comprises the four limbs, Sze-chi 四肢: the five viscera, Wu-ch'ang 五腸; and the six organs, Luh-fei 六肺.

雷 Lei, thunder, the spirits presiding over the "Ministry of the thunderbolt" (2).

水 星 府 Shui-sing-fu, the ministry or gods who preside over the planet Mercury (3).

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods (4).

鬼 Kwei, a ghost, a spectre, a demon.

II. Full reading of the text.

It is hereby ordered to restore bodily health and peace of mind to the patient. Let the gods who preside over the "Ministry of the thunderbolt" and the planet Mercury, Shui-sing 水星, together with the 36 stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, dispel all malignant demons that have caused this disease.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 188.

(2) See on these thunder gods. Vol. III, p. 230, 237, note 3, 246.

(3) In Taoist philosophy, the stars are regarded as the sublimated essences of things. The souls of the 5 elements rose when highly purified through the air to the region of stars, and became the five planets. Thus Mercury is the essence of water (the water-star, Shui-sing 水星), Venus of metal, Mars of fire, Jupiter of wood, and Saturn of earth. Edkins, Religion in China, p. 106.

(4) See Vol. III, p. 253, where these stellar gods are described.

N<sup>o</sup> 110. ANTI-DELIRIUM CHARM (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, a divine command.

日 Jeh, the sun.

月 Yueh, the moon.

星辰 Sing-ch'en, the heavenly bodies, the stars (2). Let all the heavenly bodies restore lucidity to the patient.

七星 Ts'ih-sing, the seven stars in the constellation of the Great Bear (3).

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods (4).

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

The sun, moon, and all the heavenly bodies, are hereby ordered to restore lucidity to the patient. Let the seven star-gods in the constellation of the Great Bear, and the 36 stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, relieve him forthwith.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 189. This charm is applied on the chest or pinned on to the clothes of the patient. Should he be capable of drinking something, it is burnt, and the ashes steeped in tea are administered to him.

(2) Ch'en 辰, a Chinese hour, especially the time from 7 to 9 a.m.; also the heavenly bodies which mark the times, especially the sun and moon. Williams, Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

(3) See Vol. III, p. 253, where a similar demon-expelling charm is described. Also p. 267, 268.

靈 Ling, efficacious, powerful.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "god of thunder".

風 Fung, the wind, a gale, a breeze.

吠 咳 Fei-yiu, hark! ye (maleficent imps).

勅 令 Ch'ih-ling, a special order, a divine command.

當 明 良 Tang-ming-liang, let all pains cease forthwith.

文 Wen, homonym employed for another Wen 聞, first character of Wen T'ai-shi 聞太師 (The Great Master who hears). a name given to Lei-tsu 雷祖, the "god of thunder", from whom this order emanates.

II. Full reading of the text.

Powerful as thunder and wind is the present order. Hark! ye maleficent imps. I hereby enjoin that all pains cease forthwith. Signed by Wen T'ai-shi 聞太師, the god who presides over the thunderbolt (2).

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 190. When all other remedies have failed, recourse is had to this wonderful specific.

(2) We have here a specimen of those charms that operate through allusion. The word Wen 文 awakens the idea of the "god of thunder", and thus inspires a salutary terror.

N° 112. CHARM CURING FROM DIARRHOEA (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

普 P'u, employed here for P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊, the "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven" 2.

庵 Ngan, Chinese transliteration of the Tibetan word "Om", first of the magic formula "Om! mani padme, hum!" Oh! the jewel of creation in the Lotus.

勅 Ch'ih, an order, an Imperial mandate.

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

頭 T'eu, the head, the ruler.

七星 Ts'ih-sing, the seven stars in the constellation of the Great Bear, which, under the control of Cheu-wu 眞武, counteract the influence of malevolent demons.

收捕 Show-pu, to pursue and capture, to seize.

煞 Shah, murderous ghosts: employed here for Ti-shah 地煞, malevolent demons, enemies of man.

速住 Suh-chu, to detain quickly, to imprison.

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven" utters the magic word, "Om", and orders in the name of the "three religions", that the ruler of the seven stars in the constellation of the Great Bear seize the maleficent demons who have caused this ailment, and imprison them forthwith.

1) See Vol. II, p. 191.

2) In Sanscrit "Bhaishajyaguru Buddha", a fabulous being introduced by Northern Buddhism. He is worshipped as a deity who removes suffering and lengthens life, but is in fact only the symbol of those ideas. His birthday is on the 30th of the ninth month. I. Literal explanation of terms.

普 佛 P'u-fuh, employed here for P'u-hwa-fuh 普化佛, or P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊, the "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven" (2).

齒 三 音 Ch'i-san-yin, gnashing the teeth utters the three magic words.

語 抹 臨 Yü-moh-lin, a magic formula.

三 官 San-kwan, the "three rulers", who preside over heaven, earth and water.

由 Yiu, from.

鬼 Wei, a peak, a high rugged rock.

六 道 Luh-tao, the six paths of transmigration (3), i.e., to help in bringing forth the child from its mother's womb.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven", P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊, has uttered the magic formula "Yü-moh-lin", and orders the "three great rulers" to help in bringing forth the child from its mother's womb.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 192. This is a special Buddhist charm renowned for hastening delivery, when childbirth is difficult. Prayers are addressed to "Ju-tai Buddha" (the Buddha of the future), and he comes personally to the rescue of the person who invokes him.

(2) See on this "healing Buddha". Vol. III, p. 298.

(3) In Sanscrit "Gati". Buddhists hold that there are only 6 forms or ways of existence through which living beings can pass, viz: gods (Devas), men, Asuras (demons), dwellers in hell, Pretas (hungry ghosts and animals). Transmigration is not extended, as in the Brahmanical system, to plants, stocks and stones. Monier Williams. Buddhism, p. 121.

N° 111. ANOTHER ANTI-DELIRIUM CHARM.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

The person suffering from delirium utters extravagant ideas, and is in prey to violent internal agitation, hence the charm is divided into three parts.

1° The spell.

珍 Chen.

精 Tsing.

接 Ngan.

盟 Mêng.

招 Chao.

The above five magic words are endowed with powerful efficacy.

2° Inarticulate mutterings of the patient.

蛤 蛤 蛤 Hoh, hoh, hoh!

鄉 鄉 鄉 Hsiang, hsiang, hsiang!

曹 曹 曹 Ts'ao, ts'ao, ts'ao!

3° Efficacy of the charm.

靈 Ling. powerful, efficacious.

鎮 Chen. to repress, to restrain.

火 Hwo. fire. the internal fever which preys on the patient.

II. Full reading of the text.

Through the magic formula "Chen-tsing-ngan-mêng-chao", let the patient cease to mutter the extravagant words "Hoh-hoh-hoh! Hsiang-hsiang-hsiang! Ts'ao-ts'ao-ts'ao!" and let the internal fever which preys on him be forthwith allayed.

雷 Lei, thunder, let the thunderbolt strike, extirpate.

泓 Hung, a deep pool.

澄 Ch'eng, still and deep.

湖 Hu, a lake, a large pool.

雷 Lei, thunder, let the thunderbolt strike, blast.

鍾招禮 Chung, Chao, Li, three maleficent stellar gods.

眞午 Chen-wu, at exact noon, in full mid-day.

烜蝕 Hsüen-shih, to dry up and eliminate.

II. Full reading of the text.

Let the thunderbolt extirpate this morbid humour, deep as a lake; let it strike the three maleficent stellar gods, Chung, Chao and Li, who have caused this ailment. Let the noonday sun dry up and eliminate all diseased germs of the patient's body.

---

(1) See Vol. II. p. 194. This charm is first applied on the swollen part. It is then burnt, and the ashes mingled with some beverage are given to the sufferer.

N° 116. BUDDHIST CHARM FOR CURING SORE EYES (I).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

佛 Fuh, the Chinese name of Buddha.

勅 (令) 下 Ch'ih (ling) hsia, orders, prescribes.

六星 Luh-sing, the six stars or stellar gods.

南斗 Nan-teu, presiding over the South Pole.

煞鬼 Shah-kwei, murderous, malevolent demons. Here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

奉行 Fung-hsing, to obey, to carry out commands.

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods.

雷 Lei, thunder, to strike with the thunderbolt.

鬼 Kwei, maleficent demons.

東 Tung, the left (literally Eastern) eye.

西 Si, the right (literally Western) eye.

烟 Yen, obscured by a mist or vapour. dimmed.

陽陰 Yin-yang, the two great "Powers of Nature". Here one eye is supposed to proceed from the Yang principle, and the other from the Yin.

II. Full reading of the text.

Buddha hereby orders the six stellar gods of the South Pole, Nan-teu luh-sing 南斗六星, to expel the maleficent demons Ti-shah 地煞. Let the auspicious stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, also destroy the evil spirits, who have injured the right eye and obscured the left one, thus affording perfect relief to both.

---

(I) See Vol. II, p. 195. The eyes are first rubbed with the written charm. It is then burnt, and the ashes steeped in water are used for washing the eye-lashes.

N<sup>o</sup> 119. CHARM FOR STOPPING BLEEDING.

FROM THE NOSE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

This charm contains only two characters.

雷 Lei, thunder, the thunderbolt.

吹 Ch'ui, to blow, to crash into.

II. Full reading of the text.

Let the thunderbolt crash into his nostrils and arrest the bleeding. This magic formula, when recited seven times, is deemed to be of marvellous efficacy.

---

(1) See Vol II, p. 198. This charm is burnt in front of the sufferer, quite close to his toes. The part burnt beside the right foot is designed to stop the flow of blood from the right nostril; the other part, burnt near the left foot, must stop the blood that issues from the left nostril. Some ashes are also introduced into the nostrils.

N° 120. CHARM FOR HEALING BREAST-SORES
IN SUCKLING WOMEN (1).

This charm comprises two parts, the quack advertisement and the charm proper.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

1° The quack advertisement.

A mischievous urchin has injured the breasts of its nurse. The latter accosts a Taoist priest and asks what has caused the pain. I can't say, replies the quack, but wipe quickly with your hand the nipples, in order to stop the blood and allay the pain. By the bye, I have just received a marvellous nostrum from the Honourable Lao-kün 太上老君, and it will relieve.

2° The charm proper.

雷 Lei, thunder, let the thunderbolt strike.

鬼 Kwei, the five malevolent stellar gods: Tsing 井, Yung 容, Yueh 月, Shih 十 and Ting 丁.

雷 Lei, thunder, let the thunderbolt strike.

鬼 Kwei, the five malevolent stellar gods: Wei 爲, Yuh 欲, Ch'ung 蟲, Loh 落 and Sau 散.

II. Full reading of the text.

Let the thunderbolt strike the five malevolent stellar gods, Tsing, Yung, Yueh, Shih and Ting, who have injured the left breast of this woman; and likewise the five other malignant star-gods, Wei, Yuh, Ch'ung, Loh and Sau, who have caused the pain in her right breast.

---

(1) See Vol. II. p. 199. This charm is a pure invention of Taoists. When applied, it is said the sores close up, and all pain quite disappears, through the mysterious power of Lao-tze 老子.

N° 121

N° 121. CHARM FOR PROTECTING WOMEN

WHEN NEARING CONFINEMENT (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

雷 勅 Lei-ch'ih, order emanating from Lei-tsu 雷 祖, ruler of the "Ministry of the thunderbolt" (2).

壺 Hu, a vase, a jug. Employed here for Fu 符, a charm, the two words being similarly pronounced in several parts of Kiangsu 江蘇.

頭 T'eu, the head, worn on the head or hair.

虎 頭 Hu-t'eu, (and protecting as a) tiger's head (3).

女 人 Nü-jen, this woman.

雷 Lei, thunder, the thunderbolt.

斬 Chan, to cut in two, to crush, to destroy.

罪 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天 罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 auspicious stars or stellar gods.

更 Keng, to change, to alter.

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

The ruler of the "Ministry of the thunderbolt", Lei-tsu 雷 祖, hereby orders that the charm which this woman wears in her hair afford her protection as would a tiger's head. Let the thunderbolt wreck her evil star, and let the auspicious stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天 罡, henceforth abide by her.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 200. Child-bearing women wear this charm hidden in the hair of the head.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 230, 231, 237, 246, note 2, 274.

(3) The tiger is deemed by the Chinese to be a great destroyer and expeller of spectres. He can grasp them, tear them asunder, and devour them. The picture of a tiger's head is believed to be very efficacious in counteracting all pernicious influences that affect children. De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. VI, 955 (The tiger, a destroyer of spectres).

N<sup>o</sup> 122. BUDDHIST CHARM ASSURING

A HAPPY DELIVERY (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

佛 勅 令 Fuh ch'ih-ling, mandate emanating from Buddha.

牀 頭 Ch'wang-t'eu, the head of the bed.

以 獅 I-shi, taking a lion (2).

任 Jen. to be responsible for, to fulfil a duty.

孩 Hai, an infant, a child.

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天 罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 auspicious stars or stellar gods.

更 Keng, to change, to alter.

煞 Shah, malevolent ghosts. Here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地 煞, and enemies of man.

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

Buddha hereby orders that the lion keep guard at the head of the bed, and protect the child in its mother's womb. Moreover, the auspicious gods, T'ien-kang 天 罡, must forthwith counteract all maleficent influences caused by evil stars.

---

1) See Vol. II, p. 201. This charm is sold by Buddhist priests, and affixed at the head of the bed for the purpose of obtaining the happy delivery of a child-bearing woman.

(2) The lion is the emblem of Buddha, one of his titles being "Sakya-sinha", the "Lion of the Sakya tribe". In his repeated births, he was born 10 times as a lion, 6 as an elephant, once as a hare, but never as a woman, an insect or a "Preta". The "lion's roar" is a term for Buddhist preaching. Monier Williams, Buddhism, p. 112, 332.

N<sup>o</sup> 123. CHARM FOR CURING STITCHES IN THE SIDE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

普 P'u, employed here for P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊, the "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven" (2).

唵 Ngan, Chinese transliteration of the Tibetan word "Om" (3).

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, orders, commands.

治盡 Chi-tsin, to remedy, to heal completely.

月日 Yueh-jeh, the moon and the day.

九九八十一日 Kiu-kiu pah-shih-yih jeh,  $9 \times 9 = 81$  cold days of winter.

雷 Lei, thunder, let the thunderbolt strike, crush.

印 Yin, a trace, a mark.

煞 Shah, baleful, malignant, murderous. Here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "healing Buddha, honoured of Heaven", P'u-hwa T'ien-tsun 普化天尊, utters the magic word "Om", and orders that the stitches in the side, contracted on such a day and in such a month, during the 81 cold days of winter, be cured. Let the thunderbolt crush forthwith the maleficent stellar gods, Ti-shah 地煞, who have caused these pains.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 202. This charm is applied over the lungs, and sides, or placed over the spot where pain is felt.

(2) See Vol. III, p. 278, note 2. —This fabulous Buddha removes suffering and lengthens life.

(3) "Om" is the first word of the magic formula "Om! mani padme, hum". Oh! the jewel of creation in the Lotus. See Vol. III, p. 288, 298.

N<sup>o</sup> 121. CHARM CURING ACHING OF THE STOMACH
AND GASTRITIS (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

佛 勅 (令) Fuh-ch'ih (ling), order emanating from Buddha.

佛 位 Fuh-wei, Buddha's seat, throne. Buddha comes personally seated on his throne (2).

笏 Hwuh, a tablet held by courtiers (3).

圈 內 七 筆 K'üen-nei ts'ih-pih, traces seven lines in a circle. The substitute of Buddha traces a spiral of seven lines on the chest of the patient.

Before tracing the four following characters, the substitute breathes on the pen, and then writes out the words.

氣 取 K'i-ts'ü, the breath emitted upon this pen.

真 氣 Chen-k'i, is the true breath of Buddha himself.

II. Full reading of the text.

This order emanates from Buddha: nay more, he comes personally seated on his throne, and traces a spiral of seven lines on the chest of the patient. The substitute then breathes on the pen, and writes forthwith the four following characters, saying: this breath is the true breath of Buddha himself.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 203. The spiral traced on the chest must have seven lines, failing which it has no efficacy for dispelling the pain.

(2) Fuh-wei 佛位, Buddha's throne, on which he is seated, and thus considered to be personally present. Charms set to work divine powers, call down gods to receive sacrifice and bestow felicity, propitiate them, interest them in the welfare and happiness of man (Preface to Vol. II, p. IV).

(3) It was generally about three feet long, and made of ivory, gem, wood, or bamboo. Designed at first for taking notes on, it became subsequently a badge of honour for courtiers. It ended with the Ming 明 dynasty, A.D. 1644. Williams, Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

N° 125. ANOTHER SOUL-RESTORING CHARM.

I. Literal explanation of terms.

1° The spell.

唵 Ngan, Chinese transliteration of the Tibetan word “Om”.
Eh! now therefore.

勅 Ch'ih, an order, a command.

四功曹 Sze-kung-ts'ao, the four genii who preside over the seasons, years, months and days.

壺 Hu, employed here for 符, a charm.

鬼煞 Kwei-shah, maleficent demons. Here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

雷 Lei, thunder, the god of thunder.

收鬼 Show-kwei, to restrain, to seize the demons.

消鬼 Siao-kwei, to destroy, to annihilate the demons.

2° Pursuit of the soul.

The magic words employed in pursuing the soul are found below in the full text.

3° Return of the soul.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, an order, a divine command.

魁星 Kw'ei-sing, the supreme ruler of the constellation of the Great Bear: Kw'ei-sing 魁星 arrives.

身命 Shen-ming, and restores life to the corpse.

II Full reading of the text.

Eh! the genii presiding over the year are hereby ordered to destroy the maleficent demons Ti-shah 地煞, who have snatched away the soul of So-and-So. Let the thunderbolt strike and annihilate those disturbers of established order.

Pursuer of the soul, carry out this order forthwith, and let the three souls and the seven senses of the deceased re-enter the body.

A divine order is hereby issued, commanding Kw'ei-sing 魁星 to arrive, and restore life to the corpse.

N 126. BUDDHIST NOSTRUM CURING ALL KINDS
OF DISEASE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

壺 Hu, a pot, a jug. Here used for Fu 符, a charm, the two words being similarly pronounced in several parts of Kiangsu 江蘇.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "Ministry of the thunderbolt".

勅令下 Ch'ih-ling-hsia, to order, to command.

三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

罡 Kang, employed here for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods.

正治 Chen-chi, to subject, to reduce to order.

煞 Shah, baleful, malignant, murderous. Here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

壺 Hu, here employed for Fu 符, a charm.

正治 Chen-chi, to restrain, to reduce to order.

鬼 Kwei, spectres, maleficent demons.

屈出 K'uh-ch'uh, to drive off, to expel.

由 Yiu, forthwith.

II. Full reading of the text.

An order is hereby made by the "Ministry of the thunderbolt", commanding in the name of the "three religions" that the auspicious stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, reduce to order the maleficent demons, Ti-shah 地煞, who have caused this disease. The charm must also repress these malignant beings and expel them forthwith.

---

(1) See Vol II, p. 205. This charm is said to cure the one hundred ailments, that is all kinds of disease. It seems to have been borrowed from the followers of Lao-tze 老子, and produces the same identical effects as the following one, which is exclusively employed by Taoist priests, Tao-chi 道士.

N<sup>o</sup> 127. TAOIST NOSTRUM CURING ALL DISEASES (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

正 壺 Cheng-fu, the second character is here employed for 符, a genuine charm.

三 教 San-kiao, the "three religions".

三 清 San-ts'ing, the "Three Pure Ones", a Taoist triad.

正 治 Cheng-shi, to repress, to reduce to order.

四 彗 星 Sze-hwui-sing, the four comets, the spirits who preside over them, malevolent and erratic demons.

掘 Küeh, to expel, to extirpate.

六 神 Luh-shen, the six household or tutelary gods (2).

太 平 T'ai-p'ing, undisturbed peace and contentment.

三 元 San-yuen, the "Three Principles" (3).

殺 Shah, to kill, to slay.

勅 令 Ch'ih-ling, to order, to command.

王 符 Wang-fu, a peerless, an all-powerful charm.

大 Ta, great, wonderful.

起 死 回 生 K'i-sze hwui-sheng, able to restore the dead to life.

II. Full reading of the text.

This genuine charm hereby orders, in the name of the "three religions" and the "Three Pure Ones", to repress and expel the erratic spirits who preside over the four comets, so that the household gods may maintain peace and happiness. Let the "Three Principles" slay the maleficent demons who have caused this disease. Such is the order contained in this all-powerful charm, whose efficacy is so great that it can restore the dead to life.

(1) See Vol. II. p. 206. This charm is given out in the name of the "Three religions", the "Three Pure Ones", and the "Three Principles", hence its all-powerfulness.

(2) See Vol. III. p. 261, where the names of these gods are found, and their functions described.

(3) See Vol. III. p. 236, note 2; also p. 254, note 2.

N 128. CHARM PRESERVING FROM THE EFFECTS
OF SUNSTROKE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

- 三教 San-kiao, the "three religions".
三元 San-yuen, the "Three Principles" (2).
勅令 Ch'ih-ling, to order, to command.
王靈官 Wang-ling-kwan, a Taoist god (3).
在此 Tsai-tz'e. is here.

轟 Hung, the rumbling of carriages, a stunning noise. Here the lashing which Wang-ling-kwan 王靈官 administers to maleficent demons.

值日 Chi-jeh, the day on which a certain officer is in charge. Allusion is here made to the office of one of the "four genii", Kung-tz'ao 功曹, who preside over the day.

- 諸神 Chu-shen, all the other tutelary gods.
免回 Mien-hwui, may retire, withdraw.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "three religions" and the "Three Principles" order Wang-ling-kwan 王靈官 to attend here officially, and lash unmercifully the malevolent demons. Alone, he is well able to keep these imps in order, and so all the other tutelary gods may retire.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 207. This charm is used during the excessive and protracted heat of Chinese Summers.

(2) Originally vast periods of time, like a geological epoch, they were subsequently personified and deified. They form to-day a peculiar Taoist triad. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

(3) One of the 26 commanders of the "heavenly army", a fanciful invention of Taoism. He is to-day a famous exorcist and expeller of demons who cause disease. Represented with a whip in hand, he chastises and lashes them unmercifully. This is graphically depicted by the red line drawn across the charm and ending in fork-shape form (Vol. II, p. 207).

N<sup>o</sup> 138. CHARM OF UNIVERSAL EFFICACY (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

天地 T'ien-ti, heaven and earth.

日月 Jeh-yueh, the sun and moon.

主 Chu, a lord, a master, the chief ruler of a country.

玉清 Yuh-ts'ing, the "Pearly Azure", one of the three Taoist heavens. The god who dwells in this blissful abode is called Yuh-hwang 玉皇, the "Pearly Emperor"; also known as T'ien Pao-hün 天寶君, the "Precious ruler of heaven", and Yuen-shi T'ien-tsun 元始天尊, the "Origin, honoured of heaven" (2).

萬靈 Wan-ling, ten thousand virtues, universal efficacy.

符 Fu, a spell or charm to prevent evil.

II. Full reading of the text.

Charm of universal efficacy, bestowed by the "Pearly emperor", Yuh-hwang 玉皇, supreme lord of the sun and moon, and of heaven and earth.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 243. This charm is employed by Taoist priests, Tao-shi 道士, while performing the ceremony known as "Ta-tshiao" 打醮, that is delivering souls from Hades (Vol. I, p. 151).

(2) Yuh-hwang 玉皇, the "Pearly Emperor" is deemed to be the Supreme Lord of the physical world, and the saviour of men. In the Taoist pantheon he corresponds to the Confucian Shang-ti 上帝, though he is much more humanised; and to the Buddhist Fuh 佛, or Sakyamuni. Edkins, Religion in China, p. 412.

N<sup>o</sup> 139. CHARM BESTOWING HEAVENLY CONSOLATION (1).

(sweet dew from above).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

靈寶 Ling-pao, the "mystic jewel", second god of the Taoist triad, also known as Ling-pao T'ien-tsun 靈寶天尊, the "mystic jewel, honoured of heaven". He dwells in the "Upper Azure", Shang-ts'ing 上清, or second Taoist heavens, abode of culture-heroes, hermits and recluses, all comprised under the general term "Chen-jeu" 真人 (2).

甘 Kan, sweet, consoling.

露 Lu, dew, dew-drops, ambrosia.

潤 Jun, to moisten, to bedew, to refresh.

澤 Tseh, to benefit, to enrich.

符 Fu, a spell, a charm to prevent evil.

II. Full reading of the text.

Charm bestowed by the "mystic jewel", Ling-pao 靈寶, second god of the Taoist triad, and conveying sweet, refreshing, and beneficent dew from the blissful abode of the gods for the consolation of all afflicted hearts.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 214. This "sweet dew" is regarded as the ambrosia of the gods, and Taoist priests, Tao-shi 道士, sprinkle it for ghosts to sip. Williams. Dictionary of the Chinese Language.

(2) The ideal and most elevated man. One who has disciplined himself in Taoist mysticism, and attained perfect rule over himself and over nature. He is higher than Sien 仙 immortal, but not so high as Sheng 聖, the Confucian Saint, such as were Yao 堯, Shun 舜, Yü 禹 and Wen Wang 文王 (founder of the Chow 周 dynasty, B.C. 1122). Edkins. N<sup>o</sup> 110. CHARM ASSURING PROTECTION
TO A NEW BUILDING (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

屬 亥 Shuh-hai, (given on the present day, Hai, of the Chinese cyclic year.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "god of thunder", Lei-tsu 雷祖.

斬 Chan, shortly, in all haste.

真勅令 Chen-ch'ih-ling, orders, commands.

四曹 Sze-ts'ao, the four genii, who officially preside over the seasons, years, months and days.

遊 Yiu, to go on a circuit, to inspect and seize.

厲鬼 Li-kwei, discontented orbate ghosts.

運起 Yun-k'i, to send, to enjoin, to command.

王 Wang, that is Wang T'ien-kün 王天君, Wang, the heavenly ruler: one of the genii, who controls the thunderbolt.

劫 Lieh, to bind, to restrain.

神煞 Shen-shah, erratic demons: here the 72 stellar gods, known as Ti-shah 地煞, and enemies of man.

II. Full reading of the text.

On the present day Hai 亥, of the Chinese cyclic year, the "god of thunder", Lei-tsu 雷祖, hereby orders the four genii who preside officially over the year, to proceed on a tour of inspection and seize all discontented orbate ghosts. Moreover, Wang T'ien-kün 王天君, is commanded to repress the malevolent stellar gods Ti-shah 地煞, who disturb the peace and happiness of mortals.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 215. Before building a house, it is customary in China to invite a geomancer, in order to ascertain whether the site will be favourable or not. Building charms are an integral part of the Fung-shui 風水 system. They are employed at the erection and repair of houses, to counteract the influence of murderous ghosts, prevent spectres from coming near and sowing disease or evil, and especially to pacify the spirits of the soil. De Groot, The Religious System of China, Vol. VI, p. 1058.

N<sup>o</sup> 111. CHARM FOR OBTAINING
AN INCREASE OF FORTUNE (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

天 T'ien, heaven physically and divinely.

地 Ti, the earth, the second of the "Three Prime Powers".

雷 Lei, thunder, the "Ministry of the thunderbolt".

百類 Peh-lei, the hundred species, all living beings.

The above taken collectively constitute the T'ai-kih 太極 (2), the world, the world-soul, the animated universe; the general, abstract principle whence emanate the dual powers, Yang 陽 and Yin 陰, that produce all things. It is sometimes described as synonymous with Shangti 上帝.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, orders, commands.

蝴 Hu, a butterfly. In several places of Kiangsu 江蘇, this word is pronounced in the same way as Fu 符, a charm. It is also confounded with another Hu 護, meaning to protect, and forming part of the expression Hu-fu 護符, a protecting charm. Hu, a butterfly, is here employed for the latter expression, and means a spell, a charm for preventing evil.

黑虎 Heh-hu, the black tiger. The "god of wealth" is represented riding on a black tiger, hence the name given to this charm, and its reputed efficacy for securing an increase of fortune.

II. Full reading of the text.

The world-soul, T'ai-kih 太極, hereby orders the "black tiger" charm, namely the "god of wealth", to protect the petitioner and help in securing him an abundant increase of fortune.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 219. This charm is almost exclusively employed by Taoist priests, Tao-shi 道士.

(2) Literally the "Great Extreme". The primordial monad whence originated the Yang and Yin principles (Yih-king 易經, Appendix III, Ch. XI § 70).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

天 T'ien, heaven physically and divinely.

地 Ti, the earth, the second of the "Three Prime Powers".

百類 Peh-lei, the hundred species, all living beings.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "Ministry of the thunderbolt". All these taken collectively, as in the previous charm, constitute the T'ai-kih 太極, the world, the world-soul, all nature.

雷 Lei, thunder, the "Ministry of the thunderbolt".

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, orders, commands.

炎 Yen, brilliant, fiery. When a thunder-storm breaks out, flashes gleam on all sides, and endanger the life of the seafaring man. Hence it is necessary to beg the powerful protection of the thunder-god and the auspicious star.

曲 K'üh, or Wen-k'üh-sing 文曲星, the star of Confucius.

II. Full reading of the text.

The "god of thunder", Lei-tsu 雷祖, from the depths of the ethereal vault, T'ai-kih 太極, hereby orders with fiery glare to protect the seafaring petitioner, and extend to him the auspicious influence of the star of Confucius, Wen-k'üh-sing 文曲星. Signed by the "god of thunder", Lei-tsu 雷祖, the great and fiery ruler who thrones in boundless space.

---

(1) See Vol. II, p. 220. This charm is preceded by the following injunction. An order is hereby issued to the 89 temples erected along the Yangtze river, the gods presiding over the waters, and the dragon-kings (these control the seas around M<sup>l</sup>. Mern, the fabulous centre of the Buddhist universe) to take notice of this document and assure the traveller a happy voyage.

N<sup>o</sup> 150. LUCK-BEARING CHARM OBTAINED
AT KIU-HWA-SHAN (1).

I. Literal explanation of terms.

仙山 Sien-shan, the sacred mountain.

九華 Kiu-hwa, of Kiu-hwa 2.

勅令 Ch'ih-ling, an order, a divine command.

靈符 Ling-fu, an efficacious charm.

太平 T'ai-p'ing, peace and perfect contentment.

八卦 Pah-kwa, the eight diagrams.

陰陽 Yin-yang, the two great "Powers of Nature"; active and passive, whence all beings proceed.

壺 Hu, a pot, a jug. Here used for Fu 符, a spell, a charm.

五雷 Wu-lei, the five gods who preside over the "Ministry of the thunderbolt".

經 King, the Buddhist classics or "Sutras".

罡 Kang, here employed for T'ien-kang 天罡, a constellation in which Buddhists reckon 36 stars or stellar gods.

II. Full reading of the text.

Order emanating from the sacred mountain of Kiu-hwa-shan 九華山, and bearing the seal of Ti-ts'ang-wang 地藏王. The Yin and Yang principles and the eight diagrams, Pah-kwa 八卦, are hereby commanded to grant peace and perfect contentment. This charm, approved by the five "gods of the thunderbolt", the Buddhist "Sutras", and the 36 auspicious stellar gods, T'ien-kang 天罡, will assure the holder thereof unbounded good-luck.

(1) See Vol. II, p. 225. At the head of the charm is found the seal of Ti-ts'ang-wang 地藏王, one of the five well-known Bodhisattvas (merciful beings representing the saving principle of Buddhism who presides over Hades, and saves therefrom those who worship him).

(2) Situated South of the Yangtze river, a little West of Ch'i-chow-fu 池州府, in the province of Nganhwei 安徽.
